Police Seeking Youths Who Beat, Robbed Service Station Attendant

SCENE OF ROBBERY—This was the scene of an early morning robbery today at Guher's Keystone Station, 2016 Pennsylvania Ave. E. The picture was taken shortly after two young thugs knocked out a station attendant, robbed him, stole a .38-calibre revolver and attempted to open a cash register. Borough Patrolman Gary Hunter and Station Manager Don Guher view the ransacked interior. A

Times-Mirror staff reporter on another assignment, who was first on the scene after the pair left the station, observed that papers and money mingled with the blood of the victim, Clyde Knapp, 21, of 825 Hatch Run Road. Knapp managed to stagger out in time to see the suspects' car heading east on Pennsylvania Ave.

Warren police are seeking two youths who knocked out a gas station attendant, robbed him, stole a .38-calibre revolver and took off shortly after 4:15 a.m. today. The pair was observed heading east in a 1960 light blue or green Corvair sedan, bearing Pennsylvania plates.

Police told The Times-Mirror today that the youths, believed to be 18 or 19 years old, were wearing bluejeans and dirty white tee-shirts. One is said to be about five feet ten with very long, uncombed hair. The other is described as being about five feet six with very short hair.

ACCORDING to police, the pair stopped at Don Guher's all-night Keystone Station at 2016 Pennsylvania Ave. E., to buy gas and oil. They paid for the purchase with a $5 bill and followed the on-duty station attendant, Clyde Knapp, 21, of 825 Hatch Run Road, into the station where he went to make change.

Knapp said today that one of the youths went over to a candy machine, inserted a dime which didn't work and asked for another coin. Knapp then turned away to unlock the cash register and was struck from behind by what he termed a heavy metal instrument. He said he was knocked to the floor and somewhat dazed.

THE STATION attendant said one of the pair attempted to open the cash register.

Knapp stated that he crawled to a desk and got out a .38-calibre revolver. The would-be robbers then struck Knapp several times and knocked him out, he related. Knapp today recalled that when he came to, he went out of the station and

Single Unit Approved For County's Schools

The State Council of Basic Education yesterday approved the single unit plan of reorganization under Act 299 submitted by the Warren County School Board which would place the 17 existing school districts in the county under one administrative unit.

THE NEWLY designated unit—Warren County Area—would become a school district when the currently approved plan becomes effective, mandated for not later than July 1, 1966.

This would necessarily depend upon the outcome of appeals to the plan.

OFFICIAL action on protests can be taken only after protesting school districts file formal appeals with the State Board of Education. School districts wishing to protest must file appeals within the next 30 days. The county plan drew sharp protest from both the Warren Borough and Warren Area School Boards.

DR. CARL E. Whipple, area superintendent of schools, has pointed out at numerous meetings that the single-unit plan is irrevocable. Once this plan has been approved by the state board, the new district cannot be later divided into two or more units should it be decided locally that this arrangement would be preferable.

On the other hand, should two units be approved they could later be merged into one if that is considered more feasible.

THE WARREN Borough Board originally voted for five administrative units but agreed later to go along with the Warren Area Board's recommendation for two.

When the county decision was reached, the borough board filed a protest with the county board. The county board is required by law, Dr. Whipple said this morning, when submitting this morning, when submitting

Commissioners To Study Need for Voting Machines

The Warren County Commissioners succeeded this morning—for the first time in many months—in seconding two motions and passing them unanimously in the only action brought before the board.

ONE CONCERNED a study of the need for voting machines in the county and the other, bids for a new sidewalk at the seat of county government.

The motion regarding the voting machine study came as a result of a request from Mead Twp. The board of supervisors has asked for a voting machine for the first precinct for the coming fall election.

COMMISSIONER Blain M. Mead pointed out that the request could not be considered official since it must be made in the form of a resolution drawn up by the township solicitor and passed by the supervisors to put the question on the ballot.

Minority Commissioner Lewis L. Crippen then said he thought this would be a good time to take action on a matter that has been brought up several times, a study of the need for these machines.

HE SAID HE felt a thorough study should be made of all precincts with the aim of recommending possible changes in the

None Hurt In Three Accidents

Three separate traffic accidents investigated yesterday by State Police of the Warren substation caused an estimated total damage of $2,175, but no injuries resulted.

POLICE stated that at 4 p.m. yesterday a two-car collision involved two out-of-town operators. According to police a car driven by Mildred J. Aderman, Mt. Jewett, stopped for a sign on State St. and then pulled out onto Route 62 in front of a vehicle operated by Merle A. Pier, RD 1, Portland, N.Y. Police said that the Pier car swerved to the left to avoid the collision but was struck in the left front fender by the Aderman car.

Damage was estimated to total $75.

A SECOND traffic mishap occurred at 12:30 p.m. one mile north of Warren on LR 61001, when a car driven by Michael Robert Groves, Overlook Farm, Bakerstown, Pa., traveling south and too fast for conditions went into a skid on wet slippery pavements when the operator attempted to slow down. Police said the operator lost control of his car, ran off the east side of the road, struck an embankment and turned over.

According to police, the Groves car landed back on the highway, and proceeded over the bank on the west side of the road.

GROVES and an occupant of the car were both wearing seat belts at the time of the accident and escaped injury.

Damage was estimated at $1,500 and Groves was arrested for traveling too fast for conditions.

EARLIER yesterday at 7:45 a.m. about 20 miles south of Youngsville on Route 27, state police investigated a third accident which caused an estimated $600 total damage.

Police said a car operated by Jakob Kurtich, RD 1, Grand Valley, traveling south was struck by a vehicle, also traveling south and operated by John C. Cashmere Jr., Kane Road, Sheffield. Police reported that Work on the Old State and Lanning Hill Roads near Lander is progressing adequately, according to Frank Wilcox, secretary of the Farmington Township Board of Supervisors.

The State approved the necessary funds for the improvement of the two roads, it was noted at the monthly meeting of the township supervisors. In addition to the state appropriation, which comes from the liquid fuel tax paid by the township, the county has provided supplemental funds, Wilcox pointed out.

He added that each township is required to spend a certain amount on highway improvement, and these roads constitute the yearly project in Farmington Township.

Although the improvements began two weeks ago, the project is not expected to be completed until the end of the summer. Wilcox said that the roads will be widened, sloped, and then resurfaced with gravel.

Goldwater Leaves for West Coast; Says V-P Position Is Still Open

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Barry Goldwater flies to San Francisco today, insisting "nothing has been decided" about a vice presidential running mate should he win the Republican presidential nomination.

But sources high in the Goldwater team said Wednesday night the front-running Arizona senator thinks Rep. William E. Miller of New York "has some real good things going for him" for the No. 2 spot.

And Rep. Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Michigan still is a strong possibility, they said. The same sources said the choice boils down to one between Miller and Ford.

Miller, 47, is a Roman Catholic and chairman of the Republican National Committee. Ford, like Goldwater, is an Episcopalian.

The Goldwater sources said that as of now, Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton, Goldwater's leading opponent for the presidential nomination, won't get the nod for the No. 2 spot "unless the convention forces him down our throat."

The word that "nothing has been decided" was relayed Wednesday night from Goldwater by his press aide, Tony Smith.

Goldwater has spent the last three days here in virtual seclusion.

It ends today with a transcontinental flight for the Republican National Convention, an address to an airport welcoming crowd Goldwater aides hope will be 7,000 to 8,000 strong, and a news conference at his GOP National Convention headquarters.

Goldwater goes before the GOP platform committee Friday.

Denison Kitchel, Goldwater's campaign director, said he would not object to a platform plank criticizing extremism on

Skywatchers Peering Aloft At 'Object' Seen at Sparta

A five-man Spartansburg sky watchers club formed for the purpose of observing flying saucers and other aerial phenomena is investigating a strange object reported in the Spartansburg area, coming from the direction of Grand Valley.

THE GROUP reported that Tuesday night a "boomerang shaped, whitish yellow glowing object traveling twice the speed of a jet" passed over the area.

In a hayfield near Sparta and Route 77, the group, armed with binoculars and telescopes, watched the light as it came in "low over the horizon from the direction of Grand Valley, came to a halt at a distance judged to be about a mile, appeared to rise and reverse its path and disappear."

AS THE OBJECT disappeared it turned out its lights, 17-year-old Michael Payer of Corry RD 3, said last night.

With Payer were Vergil Nichols, 17; William Cross, also 17; Cross' father, Bud Cross, and a Youngsville Air Force man who does not wish to have his name revealed.

THE YOUNGVILLE veteran described the object from the viewpoint of a trained observer. According to him, the object made no noise in more than 15 minutes of cavorting over the watchers. He speculated that the lights were from the windows or the exhaust of the object. He said the object was not like any known aircraft in his experience.

IT WAS NOT discovered that the object was boomerang shaped until the watchers looked at it through a 40-power spotting scope which they had been using in the field to look at deer.

The Corry youth eliminated the possibility that the object was a satellite by explaining that the object reversed its direction, a feat impossible for our present satellites.

HE SAID THE object appeared to rise and reverse its path of flight at the high rate of

Hollywood Reporting

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Do blondes have more fun, more sex appeal, more boy friends, more oomph?

"No! No! No!" says actress Sandra Warner, a ravishing brunette who recently had to turn blonde for a role.

"My experience as a blonde was a complete disaster. It even ruined my health. I wouldn't go through the experience again for a million dollars. Well, maybe for a million."

Sandra was cast as a movie queen.

"The studio insisted that I turn blonde. I argued: 'Would Liz Taylor qualify as a movie queen?' But it was no use. I had to turn blonde. Producers think all movie queens are blonde."

"It took three days to make me a blonde. Right there, I figured, blondes don't have time enough to have fun. And how many men can you find in a beauty shop? Blondes spend half their lives in beauty shops. "As a blonde, my whole personality changed. I may have looked flashier but I sure didn't feel it."

"Maybe it's different for natural blondes — if any exist — but the whole bleaching process is turning against nature."

"As a brunette, I consider myself a warmer woman. As a blonde, I was cold, reserved — entirely different from my real personality."

"Brunettes are sexier — even though blondes may look it," Sandra admits bitterly.

"The bleaching process put me in the hospital with toxic hepatitis — and I lost the role besides. They couldn't wait until I got well. I also lost 15 pounds."

Tina Louise took the part instead.

"She's a red head. What's Hollywood got against brunettes?"

Tranter Tells Kiwanians Of Chautauqua Program

Charles R. Tranter appeared before Warren Kiwanians Wednesday where he told them the story of Chautauqua.

TRANTER traced the history of Chautauqua to the year 1874 and told of how it was founded by a Methodist minister and a Sunday school teacher. Its original purpose, stated Tranter, was to provide training for Sunday school teachers. From its beginning on up through the 1890's Chautauqua became one of the first to offer a summer study course which included foreign languages and was also responsible for the formation of the first book club which is still in existence.

At one time it offered a four-year study and even carried the name of Chautauqua University. Tranter went on to tell Kiwanians the current activities which take place at Chautauqua each summer season. After telling of the current activities at Chautauqua, Tranter pointed out that a Chautauqua Improvement campaign was being lodged for the purpose of renovating and rebuilding many of the buildings on the grounds. The campaign committee, stated Tranter, has set as their goal the sum of $2,800,000.

Highlighting all of the various needs, Tranter then particularly pointed out the need for a new and modern entrance to the grounds. He then went on to state that the Chautauqua Improvement campaign would be in addition to the regular campaign which raises approximately $90,000 annually. Following his talk Tranter answered questions by Kiwanians. He was introduced to Kiwanians by Varod Wright, program chairman of the month.

Robert Dilks announced that the Kiwanis-sponsored annual Hot Stove All Star Game would be held on Aug. 8 with Aug. 15 as a rain date. An announcement was made regarding the Kahkwa Golf Day to be held in Erie on Aug. 6. Clifford Johnson told of a forthcoming inter-club meeting with the Jamestown Club which will be held on July 16. Following the meeting members attending will participate with a group for an afternoon of sailing on the lake. Guest at yesterday's meeting was Deac Lay of Youngsville.

Other plans being studied to lessen costs include cutting in half the size of the combination gymnasium, auditorium and cafeteria.

All Day Rain Cuts Down Attendance at Playgrounds

An all day rain yesterday forced all of the playgrounds in the borough to be closed most of the day, it was reported this morning by Fred Bell, recreation director.

SPECIAL events postponed on rainy days are rescheduled at a later date, and children are reminded to consult their bulletin boards at each play area for playground news.

The first city-wide special event will be held July 15 at Crescent playground. The annual Huck Finn and Becky Thatcher Day will get underway at 2 p.m. Last year 78 boys and girls dressed in the clothes of that era participated in the contest.

THE MEMBERS of the Warren Field and Stream Club catch and provide the fish for this popular event. The Club also provides prizes for the youngsters who catch the most fish, the smallest and the largest fish.

This special event is primarily for children ten years of age and under. When the judging is completed, the children try to catch the fish with their hands, thus providing much entertainment for the many spectators who witness the event.

JOHN KOFOD provides a portrait of the best Huck and Becky dressed in their finery. Bell reports that 140 people took the bus trip to Chapman Dam last Tuesday afternoon. The second trip was made today.

THREE BUSES made the trip which is supervised by three regular playground supervisors. A 25-cent charge is made for the round trip.

Basketball players are reminded that they may continue to sign up for the summer playground league. Games are played at the Beaty parking lot four days each week. The senior division played its scrimmage game yesterday and was divided into playground teams. The junior division is continuing to organize. Games for both divisions will begin next week.

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

[EDITOR'S NOTE—Richard Deacon, the sharp-tongued comedy foil Mel Cooley on CBS' "Dick Van Dyke Show," writes today for Cynthia Lowry, who is on vacation.]

By RICHARD DEACON
Written for Associated Press

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—I have the uneasy feeling that people think of me as the world's worst sourpuss.

It's no wonder. I used to be a pretty cheerful fellow. That was before I ran into the status symbol game.

It's the modern version of keeping up with the Joneses. It's guaranteed to make a nervous wreck out of anyone.

If you have the right status symbols, you worry for fear they'll go out of date before you can pay for them. If you have the wrong ones—well, look at me. I'm a nervous wreck.

I got the clue early on what to expect when I went out to buy a house.

"How old is it?" I asked the real estate salesman. "This was built by Shepperd Strudwick," he answered, as though that made the house a cut above a Frank Lloyd Wright.

"Oh," I said, "is he a well-known local architect? Turned out Strudwick is a fine actor, who I'm sure would rather be known for his work than for a house. But that's how it goes in Hollywood.

When I finally did buy a house I got quite a bit of status because it used to belong to Cara Williams. And Natalie Wood lived on the corner.

Animals are very important for status in Hollywood. French poodles used to be the thing. Then the Group went to Schnauzers. I got in on the wave with a wonderful miniature Schnauzer named Fred.

But now it's chic to have a mongrel or a beagle—anything, really, with long ears.

It's most important to collect art and I do. But all the artists I collect are living, so I'm not quite in. I do have a little etching by Rembrandt and I carefully point it out to people.

They told me I'd have to have a pool in Hollywood, so I hurried to put one in. After hauling all the rock and arranging all the piping and getting it landscaped, I found out they meant a swimming pool — not a fish pool.

I don't know how much longer I can stay in the race. I have an old convertible, but for status, you need a new convertible. I've ordered a new one but I'm afraid by the time I get it the mode will be back to old convertibles.

N. J. Board Won't Force Integration

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey State Board of Education has refused to overturn the neighborhood school concept as a means of ending racial imbalance in Union Township.

It rejected Wednesday a request by a group of Negro parents to compel the Union Township School Board to transfer pupils to reduce imbalance at the 95 per cent Negro Jefferson elementary school.

The Negroes contend a voluntary transfer plan now in effect doesn't work.

The board said it believed the public interest required that the voluntary transfer plan be upheld because "parents of students of primary school age generally desire to have their children attend schools as close home as possible."

Dear Abby . . .

By ABIGAL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband positively refuses to tip anyone unless (as he puts it) they have "earned a reward" for doing something special for him. He says waiters are paid to serve customers, doormen are paid to open doors, taxi drivers are paid to drive, and barbers are paid to cut hair, and he's sick of all these people with their hands out. When we leave a restaurant, if looks could kill we'd both be dead. I get terribly embarrassed, but it doesn't seem to bother my husband a bit. How can I get it through his head that "tipping" is an accepted custom, and people who do not tip are considered strange?

NON-TIPPER'S WIFE
DEAR WIFE: Many jobs (bellboys, waiters, doormen, hairdressers, manicurists) are considered attractive only because of the "tips" that go with them. And the salaries paid take "tips" into account. So in many cases, a tip is more than a fringe benefit. It is bread and butter. Granted, no establishment should expect the customers to pay their help, but until the system is changed, why punish the working folks?

DEAR ABBY: I am a middle-aged man in love with a woman a few years my junior. We are both mature people, we both have had a previous marriage. She and I are completely congenial. We like the same things, have similar educational backgrounds and can talk for hours without running out of conversation. I love her deeply, but she says she only "likes" me, she doesn't love me—and so no marriage. All I can do is hope and wait, but she says I'm wasting my time, that she knows her feelings for me won't change. Any suggestions?

UP AGAINST A STONE WALL
DEAR UP AGAINST: Believe her. Her answer might change, but her feelings are not likely to. Then you could have a wife who "likes" but does not "love" you. That would be dandy if it's only companionship you're both looking for—but don't expect more.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think it is proper to refer to a single woman who has never been married as an "old maid"? I have a dear friend who has never married. She is attractive, popular, self-supporting and nobody's fool, and I am outraged every time I hear someone call her an "old maid." Some women turn down chances to marry because they can't get the man they want, and will settle for none other. Others have families to support. There is probably not one unmarried woman who hasn't turned down at least one chance to marry. Why, then, do so many married women who are married to beasts get a smug satisfaction out of calling their unmarried friends "old maids"? I would like your comments, please.

MARIE
DEAR MARIE: The term "old maid" is not always intended as a slur. It can be used with gentleness and understanding. And self-sufficient women, unmarried by choice, probably couldn't care less. But I agree with you—when its connotations are cruel, those using the term should be ashamed of themselves.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "JOHNNY ON THE SPOT": Keep right on being punctual—it's one of the most beautiful of all attributes, although I personally have lost more time being on time than anyone I know.

Harvard-Radcliffe Choruses at Chautauqua Monday

CHAUTAUQUA—Monday evening, Chautauqua will be host to the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society, currently on its North American Spring Tour. The chorus will sing in the amphitheater at 8:30 p.m. under the direction of Elliot Forbes.

LEAVING Chautauqua, the choir will move on to Tanglewood, Mass., for performances at the Berkshire Festival with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The Harvard Glee Club is the oldest college chorus in America, founded in 1858. The Radcliffe Choral Society was founded in 1889 and the two groups combined forces for the first time in 1917 when they appeared with the Boston Symphony.

THIS collaboration marked the beginning of a new era in American college music, an era which was to see many college groups turn from singing popular college songs to performing serious music.

The 1963-1964 season opened in November when the Glee Club and Choral Society presented a special Thanksgiving concert in the Washington National Cathedral. The assassination of President Kennedy, however, changed the nature of the program; the memorial concert performed was televised nationally as part of the special coverage given that week-end.

ON JANUARY 19, 1964 the choir, with the Boston Symphony under Erich Leinsdorf, presented the Mozart "Requiem" at the Solemn Pontifical Mass celebrating the memory of John Kennedy.

The Glee Club and Choral Society have for more than 50 years believed that the greatest enjoyment of music, for the performer, as well as the listener, is derived from the finest music performed according to the highest standards of excellence, Forbes said.

In presenting programs which range from the 16th Century of Palestrina and Weelkes to the 20th Century of Stravinsky and Thompson, from sacred to secular music, the chorus' determination to fulfill this ambition has been continually demonstrated, Forbes noted. This dedication has raised the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society to a position of eminence among American college choruses, he concluded.

Driver Improvement School Program To Be Discussed Here on Friday Night

The feasibility of a Driver Improvement School for Warren County will be discussed tomorrow evening by Harry Brainerd, commissioner of the Bureau of Traffic Safety for Pennsylvania. Joseph Kane, also of the bureau, will address the meeting, which will be held in the large courtroom of the Court House at 8 p.m.

DONALD Schuler, manager of the Warren County Motor Club, said that there is considerable local support for the establishment of a Driver Improvement School in Warren. Such a school is sanctioned by Act 245, recently passed by the General Assembly.

The purpose of the school is to retrain traffic violators, rather than simply suspend their licenses, so they may resume their driving privileges as wiser rather than angrier motorists. According to the Bureau of Traffic Safety, the Driver Improvement Schools have been a resounding success. Despite assurances to the contrary, many motorists still wonder if the school will improve motoring habits. Since such a school is voluntary, and a knowledgeable driver is not always a safe driver, they question its value.

BRAINERD and the bureau counter this argument by pointing to the success of previously established schools. Even graduates of a Driver Improvement School are pleased with the results, and these traffic violators rarely repeat their offenses, the bureau reports. One obvious reason for the violator's support of the school is that by successfully completing the four-session course he may avoid a suspension. But the bureau added that, by the motorist's own admission, he actually learns how to become a better, safer, and more confident driver.

The school would primarily be for drivers whose licenses have been suspended and in some instances suspensions are withheld until the course is completed.

DRIVERS attending the school may get some consideration for leniency and the school, which must be authorized and paid for by the County Commissioners, is free of charge.

All motorists interested in discussing the possibility of a Driver Improvement School for Warren with Harry Brainerd are urged by Don Schuler and Police Chief Michael Evan to attend the Friday night meeting at the Court House.

Notice is hereby given that on July 14, 1964, there will be filed with the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the Prothonotary of Warren County, an application for a Fictitious Name Certificate of MAGY OIL COMPANY of 230 Cleveland Avenue, North Canton, Ohio, with Pennsylvania office at 4 North Main Street, Clarendon, Pennsylvania, for the purpose of leasing, owning, developing and producing properties for oil and gas purposes, and dealing in oil and gas and its allied products; the owners of said business and company being Anthony Mondok, 230 N. Mechanics of UN Peace Force System Sometimes Are Baffling

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Authorizing dispatch of a peace force to a world hot spot now is accepted procedure at the United Nations. Even the Soviet Union appears to be agreeable at least in principle. But putting a force together swiftly and assuring its efficiency are tough problems.

The United Nations has no standby military force for use in times of crisis, such as those in Cyprus and the Congo.

Western diplomats took deep interest this week in a Soviet memorandum calling for establishment of a permanent U.N. peace force under the control of the Security Council.

The U.N. charter says that members shall provide armed forces when the council decides they are needed to maintain world peace.

It provides for a military staff committee to aid the council on the strength, employment and command of such forces. The committee is made up of five permanent members of the council—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and Nationalist China.

The committee disagreed back in 1947 on how military contributions should be made to such a force. It continues to meet periodically at U.N. headquarters but only long enough to exchange formalities.

In 1950, the General Assembly gave itself the right to act to preserve peace when a big power veto paralyzed the council. Under that authority the assembly set up the U.N. emergency force in the Middle East in 1956 and the Congo force in 1960. But the job of setting up the force in each instance fell to the secretary-general and his staff and not to the military staff committee.

In the case of Cyprus it took Secretary-General U Thant 10 days after the Security Council authorization to obtain commitments for the seven-nation, 6,200-man force now on that eastern Mediterranean island. It took more than three weeks before the force became operative.

The delay was due in part to demands from contributing nations as to what their troops would be expected to do in a situation that verged on civil war, how long they would be needed, and how expensive the operation would be.

The contributors were told that they would have to pay the costs of maintaining their troops in Cyprus because no U.N. money was available. Financial help was solicited from the wealthier countries. Contributions for the first three months included about $2 million from the United States and a million dollars from Britain.

To overcome this, the Scandinavian countries and Canada, with an approving nod from the United States, are organizing standby forces earmarked to go at the bidding of the United Nations.

The Soviet Union voted for the Cyprus operation but has not contributed money or services.

It has refused to pay anything in the past toward the Middle East and Congo forces and faces a fight in the General Assembly next fall to keep its voting rights. The charter provides that any member two years in arrears in total dues shall lose its voting right.

Some diplomats speculate that the Soviet Union may be seeking the creation of a force to which it could make a financial contribution that would avoid an assembly challenge. The Soviets also undoubtedly are seeking to put the authority over the force back in the military staff committee and the council, where they have the big power veto.

Ingram Is Minding Store For Scranton

HARRISBURG (AP) — John W. Ingram, state secretary of administration, is handling administrative affairs of the governor's office while Gov. Scranton is attending the Republican national convention in San Francisco.

Ingram emphasized Wednesday night, however, that he was not to be considered acting governor and that Scranton still held the reins of state government although he was out of the state.

"Under the state Constitution, Gov. Scranton is still the governor whether he is in the state or not," Ingram said. "My duties are merely administrative and we are in constant touch with the governor in San Francisco."

Ingram said in some states when the governor leaves the lieutenant governor assumes the role of governor. This is not true in Pennsylvania, he said.

Both Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer and Senate President Pro Tempore M. Harvey Taylor the next two men in line for the governorship, are attending the GOP convention helping Scranton in his bid for the presidential nomination.

Scranton's Secret Move

WASHINGTON — Scranton strategists have a move up their sleeve which they believe could swing a lot of delegates away from Goldwater. It is to require all delegates to vote in secret in deciding which candidate their state will support.

Behind this proposal is word leaking to Scranton forces from various state delegations that Goldwater managers are playing rough and tough; that they are cracking down economically on any delegate who appears to be leaning toward Scranton. They accuse Goldwater of sandbagging delegates with the most ruthless pressures used in any Presidential convention in recent years.

But if delegates could ballot secretly, it's believed they would not worry about political punishment and a lot would leave Goldwater for Scranton.

Under Secretary of Commerce Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., called on President Johnson the other day to give him a disturbing report on the impact of the Civil Rights Law in the North.

In Northern cities, FDR Jr., reported, there was a drift away from the Democratic party because of a rumor that the Civil Rights Law would require all employers to hire 25 per cent Negroes. Word has spread that employers would be required by the new law to fire part of their working force in order to employ 25 per cent Negroes.

Since labor in Northern cities has generally voted Democratic, it was feared this would mean a shift toward Goldwater.

Real fact is, however, that there's no such provision in the Civil Rights Law. On the contrary, section J of the Equal Opportunity provision states: "Nothing contained in this title shall be interpreted to require any employer, employment agency, or labor organization to grant preferential treatment to any individual or to any group because of the race, color, religion, sex, or national origin of such individual or group on account of an imbalance which may exist with respect to the total number or percentage of persons . . . in comparison with the total number of persons of such race, etc., in any state."

This means that an employer who now uses all white workers in a community having a large percentage of Negroes would not have to fire a percentage of whites in order to hire Negroes. But he would have to avoid discrimination in hiring new workers.

The Civil Rights Law actually makes it unlawful for an employer to advertise in newspapers or elsewhere indicating any preference for a Negro or for any race, color, religion, sex, or national origin.

The White House is considering an educational program to rectify some of these false rumors.

Most people don't realize it, but long before the Civil Rights Law was passed, Presidents Kennedy and Johnson had both been working with Southern leaders to prepare for the impact of the law.

During the past year, letters were sent by the White House to leaders in 566 cities; and about 70 per cent of these cities have now put across some form of desegregation, including lunch counter desegregation in 344 cities; restaurants in 298 cities; theaters in 284 cities; hotels and motels in 259 cities.

A total of 21 meetings was held by Administration leaders with over 1,500 in the South, and these meetings were followed up with letters to inquire about local progress in race relations.

All this paved the way for the work of ex-Governor Leroy Collins of Florida, head of the new Community Relations Service, and for Arthur Dean, Wall Street lawyer, now chairman of the National Advisory Committee on Civil Rights.

The Justice Department Civil Rights Division believes that passage of the bill will encourage integration in areas where the owners were afraid to integrate for fear of economic reprisals from white customers. The law will now give them an excuse to comply with it.

Biggest flop Congress has seen in years was that "prayer" amendment to the Constitution, proposed by Rep. Frank Becker, R-N.Y., to overturn the Supreme Court ban on any denominational prayer in public schools.

House Judiciary Chairman Manny Celler of Brooklyn has now put the bill in mothballs, after leading church spokesmen of all faiths opposed it as a threat to religious freedom. Rep. Becker wouldn't have got more than ten or twelve votes out of the 35 Judiciary Committee members if he demanded a roll call. So he didn't.

Even former Republican supporters, such as Rep. Richard Poff of Virginia, have backed away from Becker's bill. In addition, eight or ten house members have taken their names off the petition to discharge it from the Judiciary Committee. They got cold feet when letters to Congress from the general public turned substantially against the Becker measure.

John Chamberlain: These Days

The 'Trivial Issue' Danger

As this column is being written, the Scranton push for delegates has not started a prairie fire. Indeed, as the old Taft "horse's mouth" who was quoted recently in this space predicted, the result of the last-minute Scranton scramble has been to polarize the delegates prematurely, pushing hitherto uncommitted people into the Goldwater column and merely distributing Rockefeller men (who would have gone that way anyway) into the Scranton column.

But this, so another old Taft man tells me, is not the end of the anti Goldwater push. "There is every indication that there will be a duplication of the '52 convention in '64," this man says. "Before convention time, Taft looked like a sure winner. He was extremely confident. His opponent, Eisenhower, was a reluctant pawn in the hands of the Dewey Easterners; his TV appearances were almost ruinous and he gave the impression he didn't much care."

"However, the real politician doesn't go to bed before all the votes are counted. Truman taught this lesson to Dewey and Dewey was going to teach it to Taft. In a state of affairs where it appeared that Ike had no chance, Dewey felt that if respective delegate strength could be tested by going before the convention on some trivial question, Ike's position could not be possibly worsened if he lost, but on the other hand a victory—or even a good showing—would win over unknown numbers pledged or genuinely undecided delegates."

"Dewey had not plucked this 'trivial question' plan out of thin air. It began to formulate in his mind after a fight broke out over the legality of the convention credentials of two rival delegations from Texas. Ike people knew that Taft would win on this question when brought before the Credentials Committee, but they also knew that they would have the right to appeal the committee's decision to the full convention and secure a roll-call vote."

"After the committee decided for the Taft delegation, and the Ike people gave notice of appeal, Taft instinctively sought to avoid a convention fight on this question. However, during these crucial hours he held no skull sessions and being 'possessed' by no one, made every move on his own. It was he alone who decided to compromise by offering the Ike people half of the Texas delegation, which was happily refused. They had planned this 'trivial question' fight and now they were going to get it. Taft, confident as ever, asking no advice, decided to fight out the Texas question before the full convention the next day."

"That evening I met a man who was considered to be one of the country's leading professional political strategists. He told me he had been paid a fee to quarterback the Taft team but that he had been invited to no strategy meeting—if any were held. As we sat over a drink in the Blackstone he said grimly that Taft had not needed one single Texas delegate to get the nomination, and that he had tried unsuccessfully so to advise the Taft camp, and that he had recommended, to deaf ears, that the entire Texas delegation be given to Ike. Such action, he told me, would simply amount to surrendering delegates that were not needed but would automatically force a dropping of the appeal Ike's people so badly wanted."

"The rest is history. Greater harm resulted from the Taft campaign than his own loss of the nomination. From that day forward the Republican Party rent itself in two: Ike Republicans and Taft Republicans. Discounting Ike's election to two terms, like General Grant's these were not partisan victories but non-partisan tribute to a war hero. The partisan test came when Nixon ran. Lacking the Taft-Republican vote, he lost."

"If Goldwater is nominated he will not have the support of the Rocky-Scranton groups. This is a precise situation in which the principle of ruin or rule will be involved. I feel that, if Barry gets over the hurdle of the nomination he knows that his only chance for election will be on grounds that appeal to individuals rather than political parties."

If this man is right, the "trivial issue" will appear at San Francisco. The Goldwater test will be how to avoid a collision course on something not worth fighting about.

When in Danger . . .

THE U. S. NAVY has an old saying: "When in danger, when in doubt run in circles, scream and shout."

It's said with tongue-in-cheek, of course, but like any sizable institution, the U. S. Navy has a few people who believe that saying as gospel. Fortunately, the skipper of the aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt is not one of them.

On the page opposite yesterday appeared another of Les Rickey's "Ports of Call" columns. In this one he tells about his captain, Gerald E. Miller, commanding officer of the FDR. One of the statements in that column made our eyes bug.

Says Rickey, casually enough, "The threat of keeping the Roosevelt's aircraft decked arose because the air wing . . . had run out of money."

Ye Gods! Lyndon's shutting off lights in the White House, but are we down to dispensing jet fuel with an eyedropper?

It would seem that the bureaucrats are doing just that—and to the Sixth Fleet in the hot-spot Mediterranean, at that. With Cyprus smoking like a volcano and a collision between allied Greek and Turkish forces hanging like a cloud on the horizon, the FDR's 70 warplanes would have remained on deck if the boys in the Budget Bureau would have had their way.

It is fortunate that Captain Miller didn't heed the bureaucratic admonitions to be pennywise and pound foolish, and kept the jets aloft. And it's nice to know that skippers like Captain Miller are in command of important fleet units like the FDR.

The aircraft carrier may be an outmoded weapon in this era of atomic-powered submarines, but with the world in its present situation, and total war quite aside, the peace-keeping potential of the FDR and the other ships of the Sixth Fleet is a vital function.

Fire of undetermined origin totally destroyed a barn on the Kellogg farm, formerly the Charles Moore farm at Garland, shortly after midnight. The blaze was discovered by the crew of a passing Pennsylvania Railroad freight, who called the Irvine tower, the dispatcher there in turn notifying Youngsville fire department. Keeping Well . . .

SOME people lose skin pigment in irregular islands (vitiligo). These individuals do not look forward to the summer months because exposure to the sun aggravates the condition. White patches on the face, neck, arms, or back of the hands become whiter and more noticeable. This is an illusion; the normal skin surrounding the white spots tan whereas the unpigmented areas remain the same.

Vitiligo presents a challenge to dermatologists. The patches are round or irregular in shape and vary in size. Only one or two may be present or depigmentation may involve half the body surface. The hairs over the affected skin may lose their color.

Vitiligo should not be confused with albinism, in which there is no pigment. In vitiliginous areas pigment is lacking but pigment-forming cells (melanocytes) may exist. Successful treatment depends upon whether these cells can be stimulated with hormones or methoxsalen drugs.

The latter are taken orally or painted over the lesions. This makes the skin overly sensitive to ultraviolet light. The melanocytes may be stimulated provided the individual is exposed to a gradually increasing dosage of sunlight about 45 minutes after the medicine is used.

Burning must be avoided and the product should never be used except under the supervision of a physician. Furthermore, it takes several months for repigmentation to occur and users must be on the alert for side reactions.

The psoralens are tricky to use and most victims will find it is safer to stick with the older remedies. Avoid the sun to prevent tanning of the normal skin. Stain the patches the color of normal skin. There are several stains available but the proper mixture is needed. Therefore it is wiser to consult a specialist. Some dermatologists recommend tattooing the white spots with gold salts. Four to 12 treatments usually are needed and the best results are seen on face and neck.

Alpha-MSH is a melanocyte stimulating hormone that may offer hope for the future. It acts directly on the pigment-forming cells, but its use in this condition has not been evaluated.

PEOPLE, ISSUES and POLITICS

HARRISBURG — The major unfinished business of the Scranton Administration is constitutional revision. It has all the markings of a spectacular political collision in the Legislature in the years immediately ahead.

The decision on how the battle will be fought and when it will begin can only be made by one man—Governor Scranton. He has been occupied elsewhere in recent weeks.

Some of his critics have argued that if the Governor had paid more attention to State Government and less to national politics, we'd be a lot better off than we are in the drive for constitutional revision.

The Governor and his Administration are wide-open to criticism for the failure of major constitutional amendments to get anywhere in this year's session of the Legislature, but the Governor's interest in the Republican Presidential sweepstakes has had little to do with it.

The Governor had decided to give no priority to the package of constitutional amendments long before he became an active candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

In the last weeks of the legislative session, when the big amendments urged by the Governor's special commission and the Pennsylvania Bar Association were being battered and beaten, one prominent Republican representative complained: "We had no help at all from the Administration."

The results clearly showed it. Only two minor amendments of the dozen submitted by the Administration got anywhere. This moved former Attorney General William A. Schnader to tee off on the Legislature and to observe sarcastically in a speech before the State Bar Association that "evidently we should be thankful for any favors, however small!" Schnader is the driving force in the Bar Association's campaign to get a new Constitution by whole sale amendment.

Why didn't the Governor go down the line for the constitutional amendments proposed by his commission and introduced as Administration legislation? If he had pulled and hauled with the individual Republican legislators and put the power and prestige of his office on the line, as he did last year for his civil service program and this year for his unemployment compensation reforms, the results might have been different.

But how many major battles can a Governor afford to get into in one legislative session? In electing to shoot the works this year just for unemployment compensation and not to get embroiled in another major controversy, Mr. Scranton was subscribing to the legislative philosophy of many Governors before him to go for one big controversial thing at a time.

There was this about it, too: The Democrats made a partisan issue out of the major amendment proposals and held a solid party line of opposition. With this alignment, it would have been extremely difficult — if not impossible — for the Governor to win enough votes among his Republicans in this ultra-controversial legislative field.

But because the Governor didn't make the fight and all the major proposals were beaten, it is now impossible for Mr. Scranton to see any of these amendments through to the finish in the time remaining in his Administration. Amendment proposals must be approved by two separately elected Legislatures and then go up for a vote of the people.

Mr. Scranton is on record as promising to renew the battle for a constitutional convention, narrowly defeated last year, if the amendment approach fails.

Does this mean he'll ask the new Legislature next year to set up another constitutional convention referendum or will he shoot the works for a package of major amendments and leave it up to his successor to drive the amendments through their final legislative round?

If constitutional revision is to figure as an issue in this year's legislative campaign, this is a decision the Governor soon will have to make.

If the lightning strikes Mr. Scranton at San Francisco, the burden of State Government leadership will fall upon Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer. After all, the Governor would be out on the national campaign trail practically full time. So, in this situation, if anyone were to light a fire under constitutional revision this year, it would have to be Shafer.

The choice, when it finally is made — a convention or a last shot at amendments—will be all the more difficult because the advocates of constitutional revision still disagree among themselves on how it should be done, just as they did last year.

Mr. Schnader, the influential Philadelphia lawyer, and other

Bar Association powers are reported still dead-set against a convention.

One Bar Association leader is candid enough about the major reason for this. He points at the recent constitutional convention experience in Michigan where an attempt to abolish the fee-system minor judiciary and to take the election of judges out of the rough and tumble of politics got nowhere.

"We'll have a difficult enough time as it is," he says, "getting the Legislature to approve judicial reform. It may take years. But I doubt if we ever could get judicial reform at a convention. And if a convention were held, the door would be slammed against any consideration of our amendment for a long, long time."

The campaign for constitutional revision is in complete disarray. And it'll stay that way until the Governor takes over again and makes a real issue out of it.

Brinkley Views the Convention

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Republican National Convention opens in San Francisco on Monday and will have full NBC coverage until its conclusion. David Brinkley writes on "The Way It's Been," a few reflections on past conventions and campaigns from "King Caucus" to TV camera.)

By DAVID BRINKLEY
In several ways, the Conventions is a peculiar institution. Like an impatient Brigadoon, it comes to life every four years; it is master of its own rules, and its decisions are as irrevocable as a haircut. Yet the convention isn't even mentioned in the Constitution or in any law ever passed in Congress. In this sense, it might be described as the most unofficial official (or most official unofficial) gathering in politics.

Before there were nominating conventions, Presidential candidates were selected by closed Congressional caucuses (from the Greek word kaukos, a drinking cup). Since there were few roads, few newspapers and little communication between states in the early days of the Republic, Congress took over the job. The hero of New Orleans, General Andrew Jackson, changed all that. The refusal of "King Caucus" to nominate Jackson raised such a clatter that Congress gladly gave up the nominating power to a new institution, known as the Convention.

Before the revolution in American communications, it was entirely possible (and sometimes advisable) to hide the candidate himself during the campaign. In 1840, William Henry Harrison's campaign chief counseled his party managers thusly: "Let him say not one word about his principles or his creed — let him say nothing—promise nothing. Let no committee, no convention, no town meeting ever extract from him a single word about what he thinks now or will do hereafter. Let the use of pen and ink be wholly forbidden." The silent Harrison beat his more exposed opponent, Martin Van Buren, handsily.

Still, there's really no fool-proof formula for such matters. Said candidate Harry Truman more than a century later: "I expect to travel all over the country and talk at every whistle stop. We are going to be on the road most of the time from Labor Day to the end of the campaign." Truman's tireless touring led him straight back to the White House.

The fact that no one heard from William Henry Harrison himself didn't mean the campaign was silent. The country was taken by storm with parades, cider parties, song fests, huge balls rolled from one city to another, as well as badges, sashes and lithographs galore. This was the campaign of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, Too!" and of the "Log Cabin and Hard Cider." By the time Harrison's victory came, his defeated rival, Martin Van Buren, commented sorrowfully that he had been "lied down, drunk down, and sung down."

Campaign verbiage today seems pallid by contrast. As one historian put it, "Advertising men have had a hand in recent campaigns, but politicians, untrained in their magic, knew about projecting images when Madison Avenue was a cow path." Of course, the images need not have been accurate, or even relevant. William Henry Harrison of the "Log Cabin and Hard Cider" drank good bourbon and lived on a 2,000 acre estate.

Invention of the telegraph changed the whole process of reporting events. In 1884, Washington politicians were amazed to get the news from Baltimore's Democratic Convention just as it was happening. It was at that convention, by the way, that a platform condemned "fictitious symbols" and "display and appeals insulting to the judgment and subversive of the intellect of the people."

Among the candidates there have been many genuine surprises. Possibly no man was more thoroughly shocked at the suggestion of his running than Zachary Taylor. When a visitor to Taylor's tent on the Mexican War battlefield toasted him as the next President of the United States, Taylor told him "Stop your nonsense and drink your whiskey."

Just as disbelieving was the country at large in 1852, when Franklin Pierce was nominated to carry the banner for the Democratic Party. Commented Stephen Douglas: "Hereafter, no private citizen is safe."

Manned Space Platform Planned

By HOWARD BENEDICT
HUNTINGTON BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A six-man space research station with built-in centrifuge, shower, kitchen, lavatory and other conveniences of home could be orbiting the earth within five years.

That's the conclusion of a report submitted to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration recently by the Douglas Co. missile and space systems division.

NASA last year commissioned Douglas and a main subcontractor, International Business Machines, to define a manned orbiting research laboratory which would test man's physical tolerance and proficiency under extended weightless conditions.

The station also must enable the crew to conduct scientific investigations and to study physical laws and phenomena which will affect the performance of future spacecraft and equipment.

Robert L. Johnson, Douglas vice president for research and engineering, said the proposed lab would orbit for more than a year more than 200 miles above the earth. It would be the size of a large house trailer and would be launched by a Saturn rocket.

The crew would travel to and from the station in modified two-man Gemini or three-man Apollo spacecraft. The six men would return to earth on a stagg-gered schedule, to be replaced by other astronauts.

Johnson reported the laboratory has two provisions to help overcome long-term exposure to weightlessness and the possible adverse effects.

The entire laboratory can rotate slowly to provide a small degree of artificial gravity, Johnson said. In the center of the lab is an on-board centrifuge which can accommodate two men at a time. The centrifuge can whirl them to as high as nine times the force of gravity on earth to simulate re-entry forces, he said.

Space medical experts feel that a form of artificial gravity will be essential for astronauts making trips of a year or more to Mars or Venus. Otherwise, they believe muscle tone and their body systems might weaken so that they would not be able to withstand the re-entry.

Crew quarters and laboratory areas in the space station occupy a sphere-shaped inner pressure shell. The living area occupies half of the sphere and the working area the other half, with the centrifuge between.

There are accommodations for a crew of six, but the design permits comfortable temporary occupancy for eight—the number aboard during periods of crew exchange. There also is room for recreation and physical fitness activities.

The galley has facilities for reconstituting dehydrated food and for making hot and cold drinks. A small refrigerator permits storage of medical supplies and test samples.

Goldwater's Toning Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater has indicated that if he gets the Republican presidential nomination his campaign against President Johnson will be rougher than those of recent years.

But he has been moving cautiously in his double task of trying to cool any opposition to him among Republicans while going ahead with his efforts to sew up the nomination.

The Associated Press recently asked him his position on a number of issues. The answers, prepared by his staff from some of his recent statements, were released over the weekend.

He was asked what the main campaign issues will be. Several were listed and wound up with this: "... the dark shadow of scandal that hangs even over the White House itself." There has been no scandal talk in recent campaigns.

There was no explanation for what Goldwater meant. But, since he considers this a main point, it can be assumed he would hammer away at it.

If Goldwater gets the nomination, which looks likely, he will need not only all the Republican votes he can get afterward but also those of the usually Democratic Southern states. He has said a Republican couldn't win without them.

His votes against the civil rights bill angered a number of Republicans already against him. So far as can be seen it cost him none of his supporters. It probably endeared him to a lot of Southern whites.

He said the bill, voted into law July 2, flies in the face of the Constitution and enforcement of some of its sections would need a "federal police force of mammoth proportions."

He meant the sections prohibiting discrimination in public accommodations and employment. But his "no" vote gave Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton, his leading opponent for the nomination, an issue at the Republican convention opening next Monday in San Francisco.

As the Republican platform committee gathered there Sunday for days of hearings before hammering the party's positions and promises together, the Scranton forces' strategy was obvious: How to create divisions at the hearings and come up with conclusions the Goldwater forces couldn't support.

The senator and his advisers had plenty of time to prepare for such a move. Equally obvious for him would be to compromise where he could avoid party splits.

But there was a very sore point: How compromise on a civil rights plank without alienating the South since, if elected president, Goldwater would be expected to carry through on whatever the platform promised? The Goldwater forces seemed prepared for this, too.

On a television show Sunday, the senator's chief spokesman on the platform committee, Rep. John J. Rhodes, an Arizona Republican, was asked about Goldwater's views on a civil rights plank.

He gave an answer which might pacify Republicans and soothe the South.

He said Goldwater would go along with a plank, suggested by Scranton, which called for penalizing states that denied their citizens a vote. Under the 14th Amendment a state could be deprived of representatives in Congress in proportion to the number of people not voting.

But this could never be done without a tremendous fight in Congress.

Rhodes was also asked what Goldwater, as president, would do about enforcing the Civil Rights Act which he said is contrary to the Constitution.

Rhodes had an answer for that, too. "Sen. Goldwater as president of the United States would certainly require a reasonable degree of enforcement which I think would please anybody."

Reasonable is a debatable word. Enforcement which seemed reasonable to Southern whites, who oppose the Civil Rights Act, might greatly displease Negroes who want its protection.

Russell Methodist Board Elects for Coming Year

RUSSELL — Donald Fehlman was re-elected chairman of the Methodist Official Board during that group's monthly meeting. The Rev. Arthur Hummel is vice chairman and Ralph Swanson secretary.

It was reported six cushions have been ordered for use on metal chairs, also that work is progressing satisfactorily on the new educational building.

CARRIE MACK celebrated her ninth birthday anniversary with a party given by her mother. There were 16 girls present to enjoy games and remembered the birthday guest with gifts.

Not in the least new, but it's a good time to mention it. Condition by Clairol. Should have mentioned it up above, but we got sidetracked. The great beauty prescription for dry hair, which is a perennial problem in the summer with most people who are out in the sun a lot. This is a rich creme formula that adds lively bounce, new body, satiny sheen so that you don't have to hide your hair to look prettier.

On the other hand if you have a problem like ours, hair so soft that it just flies away after it's been washed, try Breck Hairdress. A few drops smoothed or brushed gently onto wet or dry hair add lustre and fragrance, make your hair instantly manageable without an oily appearance. Contains lanolin so it's good for the hands too while you're smoothing it onto your hair.

Then there's a product, or perhaps we should say products, which you can buy in a store but you can get it through a local distributor. Like Avon products and Fuller brushes, it's sold through home distribution only. But we've been using Amway products long before we knew that you could get them locally and they're so good we'll keep on buying them from the same source even though they come by mail.

Our favorite is L.O.C., the liquid organic concentrate that is bio-degradable. It's an all-purpose liquid cleaner made from a specially processed organic base, derived from pure coconut oil. Powerful enough to handle the toughest cleaning jobs but gentle enough for baby's skin. L.O.C. leaves our hands soft and smooth no matter how many dishes we wash, and we haven't used anything else for a shampoo since we discovered how wonderful it is for hair. Amway S.A. 8 for automatic washing machines will leave your laundry sparkling bright but give you no problems with over-sudsing.

There are dozens of Amway products worth investigating, from floor wax to furniture polish, oven cleaner to bug spray, germicidal to snow ice melting compound. The local distributor is Jack Downs.

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS CASSES

Rich-Casses Vows Taken In Clarendon Methodist

CLARENDON—Shirley Rich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Rich of 17 Anchor St., chose a 2 p.m. ceremony on June 27 in the Methodist Church for her marriage to Douglas Casse, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Casse of 310 Fifth Ave. east, Warren.

Twin vases of white mums and gladioli decorated the altar for the double ring service read by the Rev. Roy Dowling in the presence of approximately 150 guests. Mrs. John Casse Jr. was at the organ to provide the wedding music.

THE BRIDE was escorted by her father and chose as her maid of honor her sister, Nancy Rich; as bridesmaids, another sister, Mrs. Clinton Wooster of Reno, Nev., and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Clark Rich of Clearfield.

They were gowned in white lace over blue organdy, with matching blue crowns for their headpieces, and all carried bouquets of pink carnations.

FOR HER gown, the bride selected floor-length white peau de soie, styled with scoop neckline, elbow-length sleeves and bell shaped skirt. Her elbow veil of silk illusion was secured by a pillbox headpiece and the bridal bouquet was fashioned of white rosebuds, orchids and ivy.

Dennis Stromdahl served Mr. Casse as best man. Guests were seated by Dr. Clark Rich, Clearfield, and Paul Smith, Corry.

PRESENTED yellow rosebud corsages, Mrs. Rich chose a yellow silk sheath and white accessories. Mrs. Casse added white accessories to her ensemble of blue silk sheath and matching hat.

The ceremony was followed by a reception given in the church parlors for about 60 guests.

For a wedding trip to Atlantic City, N.J., Mrs. Casse wore a pink two-piece suit, white accessories and corsage of white orchids. The newlyweds are residing at 109½ Hemlock Ave., Kane.

BOTH YOUNG people are graduates of Warren Area High School, Class of 1961. The bride was formerly employed as a secretary for Berenfield Barrel Works. Gold Star Mother Group Is Entertained at Picnic

Warren County Chapter, Gold Star Mothers, enjoyed a picnic supper Monday evening at the home of Miss Alice Anderson, Warren-Kinzua Rd. Miss Anderson is a sister of Mrs. Ellen Sasserson and has entertained the group each summer for the past few years.

The tables were set on the patio, which faces the river, in order that those attending might enjoy both supper and the pleasant view.

AFTER the picnic, a business meeting was conducted by Mrs. Gerda Carlson, president. All officers were present except Mrs. Margaret Day, second vice president, who is vacationing in New Jersey.

The charter was draped in memory of William Hartnett and Harry Rapp, who died recently.

Gold Star Fathers are associate members of the organization. Mrs. Victor Granquist told members she is pleased with the Gold Star Father marker which has been placed on Mr. Granquist's grave.

IT WAS reported the chapter will purchase a walker and a walkerette with profits received from the recent magazine campaign and these will be loaned to invalids in need. The organization has expressed its appreciation to those who aided in the magazine sale and made possible the purchase of these articles.

The next meeting was planned for Monday, August 3, with a picnic supper at 5:30 p.m. in Crescent Park. In case of bad weather, members will meet in the American Legion Home.

The bidding:

Opening lead—queen of hearts.

When a contract appears to be hopeless, that is a good time for declarer to put on his thinking cap and see if he can pull some kind of miracle out of the air. We have all had the experience in the bidding of biting off more than we can chew, but, occasionally, some of these wild contracts pay off in an unexpected manner.

Here is an example of such a case. South is playing six spades and the outlook is certainly dim. Apparently he must lose a diamond and a club and go down one. But peculiarly enough, the contract can be made and, furthermore, it should be made.

It is not easy to work it out, even with all four hands in sight, but twelve tricks are there with proper play. South's only real chance is to find East with the ace of diamonds and most of the missing clubs, in which case the slam cannot be stopped.

Accordingly, he takes the K-A of hearts and ruffs a heart high in dummy. He then plays a low diamond, which he wins with the queen. (East cannot afford to go up with the ace because that would give South an extra diamond trick and the contract.) Declarer now draws four rounds of trumps to produce this position:

North

When South then cashes the nine of spades and discards a club from dummy, East cannot afford to release a club, so he discards the jack of diamonds.

Declarer thereupon plays the seven of diamonds and ducks in dummy, forcing East to win with the ace. The king of diamonds is now the twelfth trick.

Happy Birthdays Make Happy Kids

By LOIS McCLOSKEY
Times-Mirror Food Editor

Birthday parties with candles to blow on a cake, with ice cream, noise makers and presents to open, mark the most important milestone in a child's life next to Santa Claus and Christmas.

Lucky is the child who has a summer birthday when there is plenty of time to plan for a real celebration, plenty of games and then plenty of food. Some children like to be a part of the planning committee and to have a voice in who will be invited. . . . Others thrill with a party that is a real surprise. You know what your children like best, so plan their parties accordingly.

Don't make the mistake of having too elaborate an affair or a party that lasts too long for a small child. Neither he, nor his friends can keep up the pace too long and the interest in any game lags after a few minutes. So have very simple parties for pre-schoolers that do not last more than an hour or so including games and food.

If daughter is at the age where all boys are hateful or son thinks girls are 'for the birds,' then don't try to force them to mix sexes. If you do, no one will have a good time, including you the hostess.

Keep the parties small enough so that you can supervise them without arguments or tearing the house apart. In summer, have the party outside, where the youngsters are free to romp without climbing over the furniture, leaving shoes scattered, or experimenting with the television. A dozen small fry in one place at one time, is about all one mother can handle and even then she may feel that she needs some help with the games. This may be an older sister or brother or even better, a young neighbor that the youngsters admire and will listen to.

There are many opinions as to giving prizes for winning games at a party. The consensus from those who have worked closely with children is, that it is better to have one small prize for each youngster to take home whether he wins a game or not. In this way, each child will be more willing to play the games even though he may realize that he can't win any of them. Also, he won't go home feeling that the party wasn't much fun because he had nothing to take home. And that is what they seem to want. . . . Sometimes to take home to show Mother, that he was a success at the party.

Cherries Are Ripe Now, Freezing Procedure Easy

Road and orchard signs, newspaper ads will proclaim our local cherry picking time by saying, "Pick Your Own," "Bring your own Containers," for the spry and hardy, and so much a quart or basket for those whose cherry-picking days are over.

REGARDLESS of how you get them, cherries are ideal for freezing—for pies, juice and purees for ice cream. Sour cherries should be fully ripe and then firm for at least an hour in ice water. Then stem, sort, wash and pit them. For pies, they are best packed with sugar using from one to one and one-half cups sugar for each two quarts of prepared cherries. Mix with a wooden spoon until the fruit is all covered and sugar dissolved. Freeze them in plastic or glass containers as the acid in the juice sometimes never freezes in paper containers.

Cherries frozen to eat raw as a dessert, are best frozen in a 50 or 60-per cent syrup. For a 50 per cent syrup use 4½ cups sugar and 4 cups water for 7½ cups syrup. Just dissolve the sugar in cold water in a large pitcher the day before freezing, then put it in the refrigerator to hasten the freezing process.

From one to one and one-half pounds of sour cherries will yield a pint of cherries to freeze. A bushel (56 pounds) makes from 35 to 45 pints.

THE YIELD for sweet cherries is the same as for sour. It is not necessary to firm them in ice water as with sour cherries. Wash them well under cold running water. Stems may be removed or left on and pits removed or not, as preferred.

Sweet cherries may be frozen just as they come from the tree by spreading them out on trays with waxed paper covering until frozen then store them in plastic bags. They take up more space than cartoned cherries, but you may like to try a few for the deliciously different taste. Wash them in cold water before serving and serve before

BIRTHDAY TREAT—Ice cream in chewy Chocolate Cup Cones in a favorite flavor highlights a summer

It seems almost impossible that there are children here in the United States that never had a birthday party and that there are a great many who do not even know how old they are or their birth date. Some too, have never had a surprise birthday party because someone who was not invited always told them. It is very difficult for a child to act surprised when he knows there is to be a party, so do not do the inviting too long in advance.

A birthday party for youngsters generally starts with the opening of gifts because the giver is just as anxious to have his gift opened and displayed as the recipient is to see what is in each package. The party hats can be handed out while the gifts are opened or leave them until refreshment time if the games are the type that will make the hats a hazard to keep in place.

When the gifts have been opened and examined by each guest, try to get them into a safe place where they will still be in working order when the party is over. If each youngster has to have a try at working the darts, the plane, the kite or necessary to make sufficient syrup. Pack hot, into hot jars. Seal. Process 15 minutes in a boiling water bath. Remove at once after time is up. Test lids next day for proper seal by tapping lid with a spoon. A clear ringing sound means a good seal.

party for a child's birthday, his dog or his kitten.

what have you, there may be little left for son to play with when the party is over.

Immediately after the gift opening, get the games started. . . . a race, a Pin-the-Tail-on-the-Donkey, or something to get them very busy. Boys like active games, while many pre-teen girls prefer quiet paper or guessing games to active sports. Do not run the games over long, about half an hour of games is enough for any age party of pre-teens. This will give you time to set up the party table if it has not already been prepared. Use a paper table cloth and napkins and paper plates and cups so the china will remain intact and no stained linens.

A birthday cake with candles should be a part of every birthday party and the blowing of the candles is a long remembered feat. Regardless of the type of cake, a round one is traditionally birthday style with plenty of icing on it. It may have some little trinkets baked in it for the guests to find and treasure, but only if they are old enough to appreciate the meaning of the trinket. Certainly a three or four-year old would have little use for a button or a thimble.

Ice cream is a traditional part of the festivity too and here we have pictured a novel way to serve the youngster's favorite flavor. The cones are a wonderful combination of chocolate, marshmallow, coconut, nuts and crushed sweet, ready-to-eat oat cereal. What's more, they are quick to make and pop into the refrigerator until serving time. Then fill them with ice cream and serve them on party napkins or in paper baking cups so there is no dishwashing to do. Here is the recipe and some suggestions for birthday cake decorating.

Chocolate Cup Cones
6-ounce package semi-sweet chocolate pieces.

1 pint jar marshmallow creme
½ cup flaked or shredded coconut
½ cup chopped nutmeats
2 cups crushed sweet, ready-to-eat oat cereal

Melt chocolate pieces over hot, not boiling water in a saucepan. Stir in marshmallow creme. Remove from heat; stir in coconut, nutmeats and crushed cereal. With greased hands, press mixture into eight 5-ounce custard cups, evenly coating the bottom and sides to form cup cones. Refrigerate 1 hour or until firm. Run a spatula or knife around edge of cups to remove. Serve chocolate cups in paper baking cups or on paper napkins. Fill with scoops of ice cream. Makes 8 cones.

Preserving Season Now In High Gear in Country

Conversation between thrifty homemakers these days turns frequently to freezing, canning, preserving and jelly making. We are often amazed at the number of expressions they use about the methods they use.

Some 'put up' so many quarts, some 'put it down' and some 'jar' their fruit while we have always just plain 'canned or froze' it. Then there are those who 'do another do' of pickles or 'have another go' of paeches yet to freeze, while we still just have another 'half bushel' to fill the freezer space.

BUT JAR IT, put it down, do another go, or however the expression these are busy days in the kitchen with many more to come before the fruit shelves are full or the freezer ready for the winter months to come.

Whatever is preserved in the home, the first two steps are: careful planning of the foods most enjoyed by the family; and the selection of only top quality fruits and vegetables for canning or freezing. Neither method will improve an underripe hard peach or a vegetable that has stood too long before canning or freezing.

THE THIRD STEP is the proper method of processing or right method of freezing for a product that will keep without danger of food poisoning or spoilage because of unsanitary conditions or poorly prepared food. Last is right choice of jars for preserving. Gone are the war days when it was necessary to use coffee jars or any other jar to which a lid could be fitted. True, too, is the unwise use of mustard or other narrow neck jars for jellies and preserves. Jellies at their best, are served turned out in a proper jelly dish so the shimmering product of summer toil may be shown off to guests.

And with the Youngsville Fair approaching, those who are planning on displaying canned fruits, vegetables, jellies and pickles, should keep in mind that almost all Fair premium books require standard jars with new lids and standard jelly glasses with a metal or plastic lid. True also of baked goods is standard shaped rectangular loaves of bread with no round loaves accepted. Every improperly entered product that receives a ribbon at a Fair lowers the standard of the Fair and also encourages entrants to continue to enter products that do not make an attractive display.

With the wide variety of frozen fruits, vegetables and meats, and also of the high quality canned products, it is not necessary to freeze or can the quantity of foods we did in the past unless we have a large home garden and fruit trees and berries, or that we can get fresh picked or gathered fruits and berries from the garden and orchards at lower cost than we can purchase them commercially.

No vegetable is worth the time we must spend in preparing it to be canned and then processed unless it is processed the day it is gathered or pickled with the exception of tomatoes which are an acid vegetable that will stand some storage without deteriorating.

THIS MAY be a poor example, but we recall going to an institution during our days with the War Emergency Food Preservation Program to find out why they were having trouble with spoilage of canned corn within a few days of processing. We found an excessively hot kitchen, with the corn stacked in large burlap bags, where it had been overnight. The canners had 15 dish pans of corn cut from the cob and still cutting more, with no one filling jars or starting to process the cut corn. As a result, the corn had flat-soured in the heat and the large pans before it was even put into the jars, and processing did not overcome it.

No more than the amount of corn that will fill one pressure cooker load should be cut from the cob at one time, then it should be started processing at once. The corn should have been pulled the day it is to be processed or stood on end in a tub with about three inches of ice or ice water and kept in the coolest place in the home, such as the cellar or a cool porch where the air circulates around it, until canning time or freezing time.

Your Turn to Win

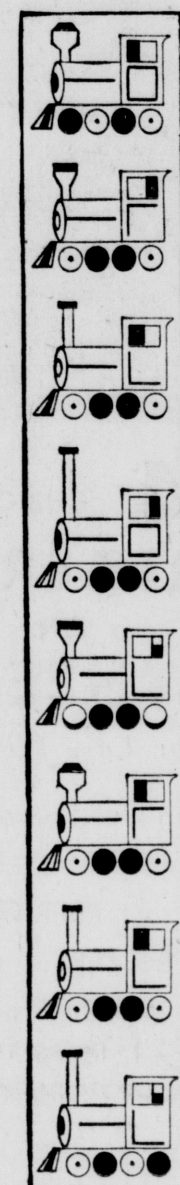

CHECKER experts never drag out an ending when a quick win is in sight. Such is the case at right. Can you see how a checker pro would play the white pieces to finish off his opponent in six moves?

It's White's turn, moving up the board. Remember, the game is over in six plays. Millard Hopper's solution to this amusing poser is given below.

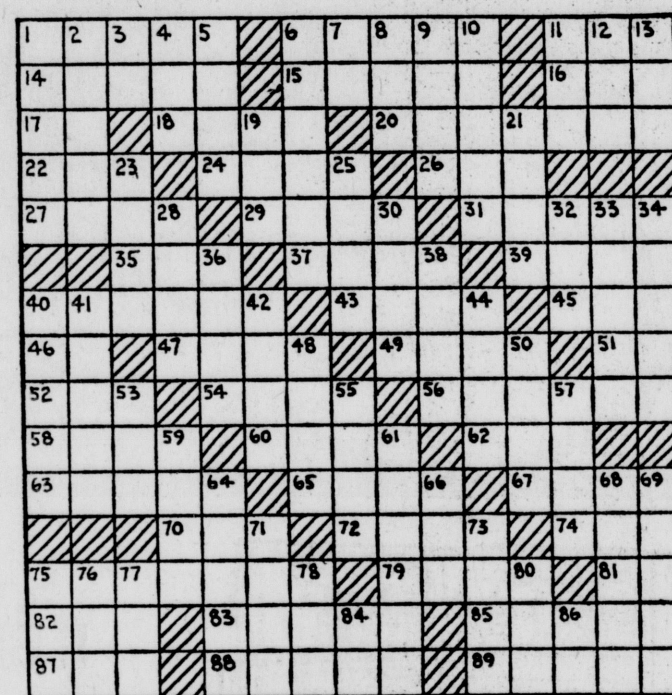

Solution: White 13-15, Black 21-23, White 13-15, Black 21-23, White 13-15, Black 21-23, White 13-15, Black 21-23.

THERE ARE three ways to have fun with the Indian war party above. First, see if you can find one figure that's different from the rest. Next, see if you can guess if any of the figures are taller and which are the same size. Then, measure to check your guess. Third, color the figures on the right side neatly. And, using a mirror in the manner indicated at left, see if you can superimpose the figures at right upon the figures at left so that only three figures appear in the scene. You can have some additional fun with the drawing by adding a variety of colors to the background with an eye toward enhancing the illusory 3-dimensional effect now in evidence. For instance, all shaded portions of the scene may be colored red; unshaded portions radiating from line at center and at left and right at top may be colored blue; alternate horizontal steps from top down may be colored blue; remaining steps and curbing black, etc.

Well, Fancy Meeting You Here

AS BEANIE BEAR went out for a stroll one day, he met a creature the likes of which he had never seen. It looked something like a duck. But it wasn't a duck. It looked something like a goose. But it wasn't a goose. It looked something like a stork. But it wasn't a stork. What could it have been?

To find out, simply draw a line from dot 1 to dot 2 to dot 3, and so on, until you have touched all of the numbered dots. Where two numbers are beside one dot, use that dot for both.

Bees In Bonnet?

FEARLESS FRANK has tied three sticks together to make a pole with which to knock down a wasp's nest. The top stick is 37 inches long, the middle stick is 46 inches long, the bottom stick is 35 inches long and the untied portion of the middle stick is one-half the total length of the untied portions of the top and bottom sticks. How long is the pole?

Hint: Consider the pole as being made up of five sections: A, B, C, D and E.

Handy Trance

ASK someone to extend an arm straight to the side, palm up. Tell him you're going to make him raise his hand in spite of hypnotism. Then, as you recite some meaningless patter, stroke the palm of his hand several times and stop suddenly. To his great surprise, his hand will involuntarily shoot upward!

Crossed Numbers Test the Wits

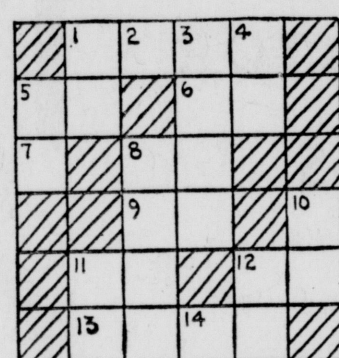

TO SOLVE this wits tester, proceed as in a crossword puzzle, using numbers instead of letters for the answers.

- ACROSS
1. The year Columbus discovered America, times the number of ships in his expedition, minus the number of Books in the New and Old Testament.
 5. A clue: Tell me why; East Lynne; Now the day is over.
 6. Witty Ditty: Ladies aren't haughty When they're pushing —.
 7. If he's "grown another foot," how many has he?
 8. Reverse the digits in 972. Subtract the two numbers. Add the digits in your answer. Reverse digits.
 9. "Life begins at —."
 10. David's query to his young son Solomon: What is the sum of $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{5}$, $\frac{1}{20}$?
 11. Area of a square formed by joining the midpoints of the sides of a square whose area is 60 sq. in.?
 12. Numbers concealed in this Chicago sign: STATE STREET THAT GREAT STREET.
 13. Each State governor can look around and see — good reasons why he — run for President.
- DOWN
1. Two packs of cigarettes.
 2. "God's Little Acre," is not about a — H Club!
 3. Gone, but not forgotten.

LADDER WORDS

ARE you able to turn a SEED into a TREE in five steps? Remember, only one letter may be changed in each step.

Solution: Seed, feed, lead, head, dead.

4. An owl's eyes.
5. Double one letter in "neither," and rearrange the others to get this number.
8. The meaning of these phrases should suggest numbers to you: In a bad spot; A cat nap; A stitch in time.
10. Clementine's two shoes.
11. They say that the Danube River flows in — time.
12. Anchors weigh today.
14. Twice this number equals thrice the number.

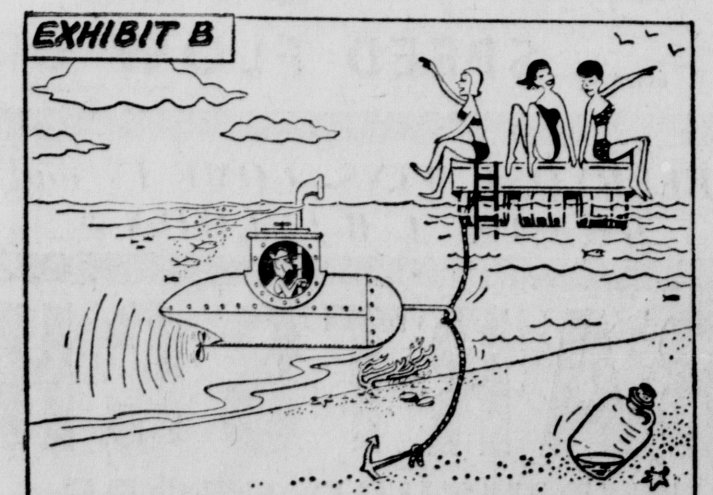

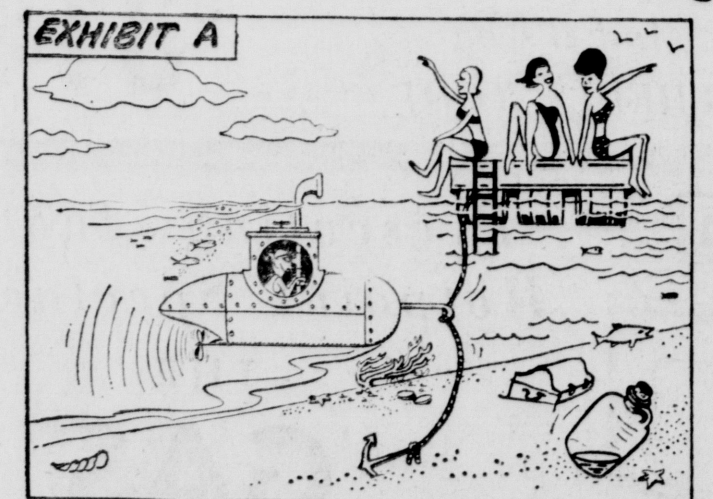

When on a Hike

WHAT would you do if: 1. You were hiking through an unknown deserted part of the country to a distant town. 2. Your only guides were the successive signposts you encountered on the way. 3. Coming presently to your crossroads, you found that the signpost there had been upset by the wind and had fallen into a ditch face downwards. 4. You wanted to continue on your way?

She Fibbed in 1960

THINK this over a bit before answering: If she fibbed in 1960 that her age was 20, when was she 24, how old is she now?

PEER THROUGH HAZY SCENE?

LET'S SUPPOSE the diagram above represents a work of modern art. What would you suggest as an appropriate title? "Crazy Quilt?" "Portion of Scrambled Eggs?" "Feeding Time for the Swans?" One or all of these titles may be perfectly fitting—on the surface of things. But curiously enough, hidden 'midst this jumble of

That's the Way the Ball Bounces

THERE is usually a good bit of luck involved when a golfer scores a hole in one. An example is shown above. The golfer pictured has completed a triple carom slice-hook drive from tee at bottom right to cup at upper left. Just for fun, see if you can trace the ball's path en route.

For your information, throughout its flight the ball travels in sweeping curves and bounces. Three bounces are involved in the success of this golfer's drive.

Identify the "Ants"

CAN you identify the "ants" in this puzzling ant-hill? You will find an ant heading every word that comes out of it. For instance, the purifying ant is an ANTISEPTIC. Now try these: 1. The ant that goes before the others. 2. The enemy ant. 3. The ant that existed before the creation of the world.

As SAM DAWSON Sees It (Business News Analysis)

NEW YORK (AP)—American business is riding a profit wave as spectacular as any challenged by the surfboard set. A flood of earnings reports for the second quarter is starting. Early tallies and estimates reveal only a small minority of companies that aren't doing better than a year ago. Many are reporting new highs for the quarter. Some are setting records for any three-month period in their history. The good news is encouraging the bulls in the stock market. Also gladdened are the hearts of shareholders who hope for further increases in dividends. The U.S. Treasury will be a big winner, too. Even at the lowered tax rates on corporate incomes, the record gross earnings will mean a flow of tax receipts. The bigger-than-expected jump in profits in the first three months of the year is being extended through the latest period. Earliest reports are from corporations with fiscal years ending ahead of the calendar year, so that their second quarter books were closed before June 30. But the nation's banks are reporting for the April-May-June quarter and most of them show gains over last year. Officials of many of the large corporations yet to report formally also are on record as estimating that the gain over last year will be substantial. Among the big companies already reporting increased earnings are American Telephone & Telegraph, Firestone Tire & Rubber and Douglas Aircraft. Preliminary estimates also put Du Pont and Parke, Davis & Co. in this group. Most steel companies are expected to join the list by the end of the month. The big motor companies are considered sure members of the club. Retail chains reporting so far are almost all in the plus column. Included are J. C. Penney, R. H. Macy, Federated Department Stores, Bullock's, Marshall Field, May Department Stores, Associated Dry Goods, Allied Stores, Russells, and Lane Bryant. Executives of a number of the nation's largest corporations are on record as predicting that the rate of the profit increases may slow a bit in coming months but that the figures will stay well above those of a year ago. They, like many stock traders already have put 1964 down in the books as the most profitable, in terms of dollar totals, in American business history.

Russians Buy Mine Machines From Joy Firm
MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass reported Wednesday night that the Soviet Union has bought $5.5 million of American mining equipment from the Joy Manufacturing Co. in Pittsburgh. According to the report, the deal was closed with the Soviet Machine Import Assn. after six months of bargaining. Tass said, "The stumbling block during the negotiations were the prices artificially boosted by the Joy company. These prices were lowered more or less monthly and at the end the total cost of the deal amounted to $5.5 million." The order includes 90 cutters, loaders, loading machines and self-propelled cars to be used in potassium salt and iron ore mining operations, Tass reported. The news agency said the Soviets would pay cash on delivery. It said Joy last year sold the Russians $1.7 million worth of similar equipment. Tass said Joy was considering purchasing Soviet lathes.

DRIVE CAREFULLY!

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market continued to edge forward early this afternoon in moderate trading.

Steels took the lead but lost some of their gains around midday.

Brokers said the market continue to be supported by generally favorable business news. They are expecting a flow of corporate reports of improved earnings.

RCA, which Wednesday reported record profits for the second quarter and the half, advanced a fraction.

U.S. Steel and Jones & Laughlin gained about half a point. Bethlehem was off slightly.

The Associated Press 60-stock average at noon was up .5 to 318.0 with industrials up .9, rails off .1 and utilities up .4.

At noon, the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had gained 0.47 to 845.92.

Electronics and chemicals were in the plus column. Other groups were mixed.

Zenith advanced about half a point and Raytheon and Sperry Rand were ahead by lesser fractions.

Control Data, which ran up more than 4 points Wednesday, was hit by profit-taking and lost better than a point.

Du Pont helped the averages with an advance of almost two points while Allied Chemical and Eastman Kodak were up half a point.

American Telephone lost a minor fraction.

IBM added 2 points and Zerox and High Voltage Engineering tacked on about half a point.

General Motors, Ford and American Motors added minor fractions.

Today in Washington
WASHINGTON (AP)—The Library of Congress has received a gift of 700 rare books from Lessing J. Rosenwald, American bibliophile and art collector. L. Quincy Mumford, Librarian of Congress who announced the gift Wednesday, said the books include the first Bible in German printed in Augsburg about 1475 and a Latin Bible printed in Venice in 1476. The volumes will be added to the Rosenwald collection of more than 1,500 rare books already in the library. Rosenwald, 73, who retired 25 years ago as board chairman of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and now lives in Jenkintown, Pa., established the collection in the library in 1943.

Union Says Labor Campaign Not Aimed at Any Special Candidate

HARRISBURG (AP) — Harry Boyer, president of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO, says a political action campaign to be waged by organized labor in the November election is not aimed directly at any particular candidates. A resolution, adopted at the state AFL-CIO convention in Pittsburgh last May, specifically prohibits the $200,000 fund earmarked for the campaign from being "used in support of candidates for (public) office..." The campaign, Boyer said, is aimed at voter registration, "Get-Out-The-Vote" activity and educating union members, their families and others on the issues. Boyer agreed, however, that in this political year, personalities inevitably will creep into labor's discussions of the issues. He held that informing the union membership how certain legislators voted on certain issues is not the same as "spending money on a candidate." It was two issues close to labor's heart which played a determining role in creating the fund — unemployment compensation and right-to-work. Organized labor took a beating this year when the General Assembly adopted the Scranton administration's U.C. revisions program. At the same time, labor held that the U.C. fight was just a prelude to a bigger battle yet to come—an effort to adopt right-to-work legislation in Pennsylvania which would outlaw the closed union shop. Although Boyer won't commit himself, some high officials in the labor movement feel that next year is the year the right-to-work advocates will make their move in Pennsylvania. Gov. Scranton has said, however, he would veto a right-to-work bill. You can't be informed without the facts, and the facts are found in The Warren Times-Mirror.

Steel Co. Plans To Up Capacity of Butler Works

BUTLER, Pa. (AP)—The steel-making capacity of Armco Steel Corp.'s Butler Works will be doubled under a seven-year expansion and improvement program announced by the company Wednesday.

Harry B. Nicholson, general manager of operations for the firm's Armco Division, said new production facilities will be installed on about 470 acres of newly acquired land south of the main plant.

"Today's six open hearth furnaces and electric melt furnaces are rated at an estimated 50,000 tons a month, so that the future potential as the projects is completed rises to about 100,000 tons of steel a month," Nicholson said.

He said a 70-ton electric furnace in the present plant will be moved to the new site.

"When the new melt shop is ready," Nicholson said, "it will feature the most modern advances in melting technology along with vacuum degassing and continuous casting units."

No estimate of cost was given for the program.

publicity director of Chautauqua—and James West, Erie News city editor, and Mrs. West.

Commissioner Blain M. Mead reported this morning that 78 reservations have already been received for the meeting of the Northwest Pennsylvania Association of County Commissioners to be held here this month.

More are anticipated by the time the event occurs next Tuesday.

its recommendation to send along a copy of each objection registered.

HE SAID he had no idea how many objections were registered with the county board which would have been attached to its recommendation when it was submitted to Harrisburg.

However, Dr. Whipple noted, the state council had no choice other than to take the action it did in approving the county board's recommendation. The law states that unless a county board recommends six units more than those presently operating, the county plan must be approved.

IN VIEW of the 30-day time limit establishing for filing of a protest and the fact that the local board has not yet received official notice of the state council's action yesterday, Dr. Whipple said that the borough board will probably not meet until Aug. 3 to take up the matter of a formal protest.

The borough and area boards had planned to cancel all meetings until September unless pressing business necessitated the calling of a session.

SHOULD THE borough board file a formal protest, as it is anticipated it will, Dr. Whipple said the protest will be heard by a committee of five, who will then report to the State Board of Education, which will make the final decision regarding Warren County.

Under the plan approved yesterday by the state council, the designated single administrative unit—Warren County Area—comprises Warren, Tidoute and Bear Lake boroughs, Allegheny Valley, Brokenstraw Valley and Farmington-Pine Grove Merged School Districts, and Cone-wango, Cherry Grove, Deerfield, Elk, Glade, Limestone, Pleasant, Sheffield, Triumph and Watson townships and Sugar Grove Union.

THE WARREN County plan was one of 13 approved yesterday by the state council.

Mrs. Albert M. Greenfield, chairman of the state council, said that reorganization across the state will have the net effect of reducing 397 school districts which now operate under 97 administrative units to 82 school districts and the same number of administrative units.

The new districts would range in size from less than 1,000 pupils to more than 10,000.

YESTERDAY's action brings to 60 the number of county plans approved by the council. Involved were Adams, Bucks, Clinton, Indiana, Luzerne, Monroe, Montgomery, Snyder, Somerset, Sullivan, Tioga, Warren and Wayne.

Still to be considered are plans from Allegheny, Armstrong, Columbia, McKean, Mifflin and Potter counties.

Philadelphia is not affected by the law because it already operates a single school system.

speed and then head west. As it faded into the distance, it appeared to suddenly turn out all its lights.

This is not the first time that unidentified flying objects have been spotted in area skies and reports of such phenomena have been taken seriously by such organizations as the U. S. Air Force.

IN FACT, several years ago, the USAF undertook "Operation Bluebook," a study of UFOs (unidentified flying objects). It was possible to write off conclusively only 85 per cent of the cases as erroneous sightings, leaving 15 per cent for speculation.

The Air Force admitted there could have been objects of unknown origin in the sky.

Young Payer, not in a mood for speculation, said last night that he and the other club members are in agreement that the object contained visitors from outer space.

ADDED ATTRACTION—When Shriners of Zem Zem Temple stage their parade here Saturday evening, the program will include sections by the Zem Zem Chanters. The Chanters will sing outside the Pennsylvania Bank & Trust Co. on Second Ave. at 7 p.m. In all, eight units will take part in the Shrine parade here Saturday, a dress rehearsal for their appearance in New York during the week of July 19.

saw the suspect car heading east on Pennsylvania Ave.

First on the scene after the robbery attempt was Robert Y. Kopf, a Times-Mirror staff reporter out on another assignment. Kopf said that as he arrived to purchase gas, two girls were screaming and Knapp came staggering out with blood streaming from his head. The girls called the operator to notify police, while Kopf assisted the station attendant and contacted Times-Mirror photographer Chuck Bigelow, who arrived almost immediately.

KNAPP WAS taken to Warren General Hospital in the police car where he was treated for head lacerations and released. Knapp also sustained several broken teeth. He was still on the job shortly after 8 a.m. today.

Guher said today that the pair failed to open the cash register but took about $7 or $8 from Knapp's pocket. The stolen gun, which Guher said was loaded, was found this morning just east of Warren by a local man who notified State Police of the Warren substation.

Police said the Corvair sedan had both right headlights broken out and considerable damage was noted to the front of the car.

a thorough study of the needs of voting machines in Warren County and the commissioners' legal responsibility in providing the machines.

In the case of Mead Twp., supervisors will be advised to have their solicitor draw up the proper resolution to ask the commissioners to put the question on he ballot. Registration figures for the primary election showed 185 voters in the first precinct.

COMMISSIONER Mead noted that it would be possible to consolidate the first and second precincts—there are 113 voters in Mead 2nd—in order to support the use of a machine. Mead 3rd, with 460 voters, now has a voting machine.

As of now there are 35 voting machines used by 23 precincts. They are used by all precincts in Warren Borough; in Clarendon, Sugar Grove, Tidoute and Youngsville boroughs; and in Brokenstraw 1st, Columbus, Conewango 1st and 2nd, Farmington, Glade, Mead 3rd, Pine Grove 1st and 2nd, Pleasant, Sheffield 1st, and Sugar Grove 1st and 2nd.

MOST HAVE substantial numbers of voters. The lowest number is 184 in Sugar Grove 2nd. Regarding new sidewalks for the Courthouse, specifications have been submitted by Beck, Tinkham and Beyer. Bids will be advertised accordingly and opened at 10 a.m. July 23.

The only changes to be made in the specifications as submitted by Lawrence Beyer are that the borough will take up the flagstones and that top soil and seeding will be provided with the aid of residents lodged in the county jail.

County Volunteer Firemen Told About Space Project

One of the most imaginative and challenging projects ever undertaken by man may succeed within three years, according to J. R. Rohleder, Bell Telephone Co. supervisor of customer information, who addressed the monthly meeting of the Warren County Volunteer Firemen's Association at the North Warren Community Hall last night.

ROHLEDER spoke of Project Apollo, which is an effort to land three astronauts on the moon before the end of 1967. Bell Telephone is assisting the undertaking by establishing a communications network to guide the astronauts successfully from the earth to the moon and back, he explained.

Illustrating his talk with free-hand drawings and art panels in luminous colors under black light, he described the various stages of the trip to the moon and the delicate landing procedures to be used.

ONCE AWAY from the gravitational pull of the earth, the rocket will travel to the moon at speeds up to 25,000 miles per hour, he said. To make the trip a success, a special communications beam of concentrated light will be used by Bell Telephone engineers. Rohleder added that this powerful laser light has many other peacetime and military uses.

The 46 volunteer firemen, representing 11 county departments, received Rohleder's talk quite favorably. Many commented later that this was the most fascinating address within memory.

PRECEDING the talk, a cold plate supper was served to the hungry firemen. Then, at the monthly business meeting, the group reported the number of fires during the past month and the recent inspection ratings of each department.

It was decided to let each department select entertainment for the monthly meetings, and the firemen considered the possibility of "mutual aid runs." In addition, the committee for the Second Annual Field Day chose September 19 for the event, to be held at Island Park, Youngsville.

The officers of the association announced that a committee meeting of all chiefs will take place at the North Warren Fire Hall on July 16 at 8 p.m.

H. V. Kaltenborn Reaches 86 Today

By CHARLES L. WEST

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP)—H. V. Kaltenborn, the dean of news commentators, reached his 86th birthday today without a single word of advice for the younger generation.

"I've never believed much in giving advice," he said in a birthday eve interview at his Long Island estate. "We all have to make our own mistakes and learn from those mistakes."

But in the assured tones known to millions of Americans since the pioneer days of radio, Kaltenborn reminisced about his life and the career that took him all over the world. "Practically every country," he said, "except those favored by Lowell Thomas—such as Tibet."

Nothing elaborate was planned for the day. He and his wife, the former German Baroness Olga von Nordenflycht, expected their son and daughter and seven grandchildren to visit. "Point of View," the roomy Kaltenborn summer home.

Kaltenborn spends much of his time reading. He describes his health as excellent, but he is troubled by a muscle pressing a nerve in his back. His mind is quick and active.

The voice of radio's original news analyst first was heard on the air in April 1922, discussing a coal strike.

He was born in Milwaukee, son of Baron Rudolph Van Kaltenborn, a Hessian guards officer who came to America, and was raised in Merrill, Wis.

He was a clerk in his father's building supplies store at the age of 16, a sergeant in the 4th Wisconsin Volunteers of the Spanish-American War at 20, a newspaper reporter at 21, a traveling salesman in France at 22, a reporter again at 24, a Harvard University special student at 27, a secretary for a Harvard exchange professor in Berlin at 29, a traveling tutor for John Jacob Astor's son, Vincent, at 30, and then, once again, a newspaperman.

Kaltenborn ranked his coverage of the Munich crisis in 1938—102 broadcasts in 21 days—as his greatest professional accomplishment.

At the peak of his career, a time he refers to as "in the chips," Kaltenborn earned $8,000-$9,000 a week.

Woman Dies In Crash On Rte. 83

HARRISBURG (AP)—Mrs. Minnie Josephine Carpenter, 54, of Harrisburg was killed Wednesday when a car driven by her husband skidded on rain slick Route 83, crossed the medial strip and collided with a second car.

Swatara Twp. police said the husband, Paul Carpenter, 46, and John D. Chokran, 24, of Lower Paxton Twp., driver of the second car, escaped injury. The Carpenter car was south-bound, the Chokran car north-bound.

The accident occurred near the highway's Derry Street ramp and tied up homeward bound traffic during the afternoon rush period.

James H. Shearer of Union Deposit died in Swatara Twp. Tuesday night as his car ran out of control on Route 283, plowed through a wheat field and struck a tree. The scene of the mishap was two miles north of the accident that took the life of Mrs. Carpenter.

Dr. Thomas J. Fritchey, Dauphin County coroner, said Wednesday night, however, that an autopsy revealed that Shearer, 57, suffered a fatal heart attack before his car ran off the road.

Lutherans To Try for Decision On Racial Bias Statement Today

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Delegates of the Lutheran Church in America will try again to take action on a statement of race relations today, the final day of their biennial convention.

They debated the issue at an extended session Wednesday night but failed to take final action.

Crux of the matter is the subject of civil disobedience.

The controversial section in the statement reads:

"When other methods to bring about changes have failed, the church, its congregations, synods, agencies and institutions—including their representatives—should be free to take part in public 'demonstrations' or similar measures of civil disobedience designed to focus attention on unjust laws or social customs, and to effect the redress of wrong therein, so long as such demonstrations, etc., are conducted peaceably."

The delegates appointed a four-member committee to redraft the section.

Medical Group Promises Fight On High Costs

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Pennsylvania Medical Society, noting a recent report issued by the governor's commission, promises a continued fight against the rising cost of hospitalization.

The report of the commission, headed by Arlin M. Adams, secretary of public welfare, voiced concern that hospitalization insurance plans may be terminated as a result of a steady increase in costs.

Dr. Wilbur E. Flannery of New Castle, president of the state medical society, said his organization has been seeking a solution to the problem for years. He agreed with the commission that the length of time a patient remains hospitalized in many cases may be reduced without endangering the patient's chances for recovery.

PARKED CARS COLLIDE
WINCHESTER, Ky. (AP)—It finally happened—a parked car was struck by a parked car.

Winchester police said the vehicles were in a parking lot when one apparently slipped on ice and rolled into the other auto. Extensive damages were reported.

Earlier in the day, the some 700 delegates at the eight-day convention adopted a 1965-66 budget of $58,863,500. It provides for expenditures of $28,990,400 in 1965 and $29,873,100 in 1966.

Before Wednesday night's extended debate, Dr. William H. Lazareth, professor of systematic theology at the Philadelphia Lutheran Seminary and a member of the Board of Social Ministry, attempted to define civil disobedience.

Civil disobedience, he said, may be moral but also illegal. It is the grey area between protest demonstrations—legal and moral—and public lawlessness—neither legal nor moral.

In civil disobedience, he told the delegates, "We deal with forms of responsible, nonviolent, direct action which involve breaking a civil law which is believed to be an unjust expression of not the constitutional law of man, but the moral law of God."

The issue, Dr. Lazareth said, is the proper limit of both public demonstrations and civil disobedience.

"America's most pressing need is a clear understanding of the limits—rather than the merits—of civil disobedience in race relations," he said.

He said that if Christians choose to serve the cause of racial justice by disobeying an intolerable law, they should be willing to accept the penalty for their civil disobedience. Christians should limit and direct

Farm Experts Work on Plan For 'New' Cuba

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Cuban exile farm specialists are working on a program of agrarian reform to be put into effect if Fidel Castro is overthrown.

The purpose is to give Cuban peasants hope for a better future and thus a reason to join the move to oust Castro, according to Dr. Armando Fleites, secretary-general of the Second Front of Escambray.

Main features of the program are redistribution of the land and the use of modern methods for getting maximum production, Fleites said Wednesday.

7 Counties To Get Aid For Drought

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton certified seven Northeastern Pennsylvania counties drought disaster areas Wednesday, and, as if by magic, rain fell on the parched land.

A state agriculture official said, however, that the rain would have little effect toward alleviating the drought situation unless followed by more showers.

"These things are not alleviated by 3/4 of an inch of rain in one day," said Dewey O. Boster of the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

Scranton asked the U.S. Department of Agriculture to authorize farmers in the seven counties to take hay and pasture from diverted acreage under the conservation reserve, feed grain and wheat stabilization programs.

The counties are Tioga, Bradford, Susquehanna, Wayne, Sullivan, Lackawanna and Luzerne.

"Reports submitted by county disaster committees and statistics compiled by the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service indicate that the dry weather has brought about a serious drought in these areas," Scranton said in a statement released by his office here.

"The first hay crop ranged from 30 to 70 per cent of normal with pastures about 50 per cent of normal at this time," Scranton said. "This is the third year that most of these counties have been faced with this situation."

Leland H. Bull, state secretary of agriculture, said the severity of the present drought arises largely from the cumulative effect of dry weather over a three-year period. Farmers, he pointed out, have not had hay reserves to keep them going. Many were reported still paying for hay purchased after the severe droughts of 1962 and 1963.

Milwaukee Next for Pittsburgh

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The two-day break or the All-Star Game apparently had no ill effects on the Pittsburgh Pirates. Bob Veale and Al McBean teamed up to hold the Reds to four hits Wednesday night while their team mates whacked Cincinnati pitching for 12 hits—including home runs by Manny Mota and Willie Stargell—as the Pirates walloped the Reds, 9-1.

Mota got his fourth home of the year in the first inning off Reds starter Jim Maloney with

Lema Astonishes Scots In British Open Golf

BULLETIN

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Bruce Devlin, the former plumber's assistant from Australia, matched par today for the second straight day over the wind-blown old course for a half-way score of 72-72-144 and the early second round lead in the British Open Golf Tournament.

Max Faulkner, the last Briton to win the tournament, had his second 73 in a row for a 146 as North Sea gales rocked the course as they had Wednesday.

By TOM REEDY

Associated Press Writer
ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Tony Lema stuck his beloved wedge back in the bag and said goodbye to it today.

The 30-year-old American pro went in the second round of the 72 hole British Open Golf Championship two shots off the pace. But his 73 Wednesday behind 71 shot by Christy O'Connor of Ireland and Jean Garaialde of France, made everybody around the par 72, 6,926-yard Old Course stand up and take notice.

It was done in a 62-mile an hour wind which destroyed most of the 120 competitors, including Jack Nicklaus, the favorite, who fought to get a 76. Lema, having seen the Old Course only once and that was the day before, shifted his entire game en route. One of the greatest wedge players in the game, Lema decided the sea-side wind was too horrible to contemplate for a flying wedge shot aimed at the pin.

"I took a really big chance," he said. "I put the wedge back in the bag and said goodbye. Instead, I took a seven iron and ran the ball to the hole."

Lema, 7-1 shot in the betting, astonished the knowledgeable Scots by the way he conquered really difficult conditions to drop only one shot below par. Top players were taking anything up to 80 or more blows in the face of a gale that showed how impolite "The Old Lady"—the oldest course in the world—can be when she chooses.

Nicklaus knew as little about the Old Course as Lema and so it was as well with some of the other Americans, eight all told, challenging for the 104-year-old title.

After winning $81,000 on the American circuit this year, Nicklaus was installed 7-2 favorite to pick up the British Open crown. The odds have not shifted in spite of Golden Jack's opening round. He has a lot of ground to make up, however.

Tourney Planned For B-berry Sat.

There will be a Scotch two-ball best-ball foursome tournament at Blueberry Hill Country Club this Saturday. The public is invited.

Players are requested to make up their own foursomes for the tournament with non-members as well as members invited to participate. Greens fee for non-members will be $1. Scoring will be on the Calloway System. Tee off times will begin at 4 p.m.

fore the Giants took the second game of the doubleheader 7-2.

Bringing his record to 10-4 with his third shutout, Buhl joined teammates Larry Jackson, 11-5, and Dick Ellsworth, 10-8, as possible 20-game winners and gave the Cubs a shot at duplicating a feat that hasn't been accomplished in the National League in 41 years.

Not since the 1923 Cincinnati Reds has a NL team had a trio of 20-game winners. Adolfo Luque won 27, Pete Donohue 21 and Eppa Rixey 20 on that club. The last American League club to do it was Cleveland with Bob Lemon, Early Wynn and Herb Score, each winning 20 in 1956.

Significantly, neither the Reds nor the Indians won pennants. Both finished second.

The Cubs, however, currently are tied for seventh place—with good reason. While Buhl, Jackson and Ellsworth have accounted for 31 victories, the remainder of the staff has put together only six.

Ernie Broglio, the heralded trade acquisition from the St. Louis Cardinals who was supposed to step in as the No. 4 man, hasn't won as a Cub. He lost his fourth straight as Willie Mays powered his 24th homer for the Giants in the nightcap, called after seven innings because of darkness at the lightless Wrigley Field.

The triumph—ending the Giants longest losing streak of the season at four games—kept second-place San Francisco 1½ games back of the front-running Philadelphia Phillies, who were rained out of a scheduled game with St. Louis.

In the only other game scheduled in either league, home runs by Manny Mota and Willie Stargell triggered Pittsburgh to a 9-1 victory over Cincinnati.

Buhl, 10-4, got the only run he needed in the opener when Joe Amalfitano doubled in the first off Bob Hendley, moved up on a sacrifice and scored on a single by Ron Santo. Billy Williams, who previously had stroked a single and double, wrapped up the scoring in the seventh with his 20th homer.

The Giants stormed back in

Genesee's Lead In Golf League One Slim Point

The top five teams in the Industrial Golf League at Jackson Valley Country Club are separated by no more than one slim point after the second week of play in the second half.

Genesee Beer leads the field with 21 points followed by Loranger's with 20½ points in second place. There is a four-way tie for third place with all teams having 20 points. They are Tomassoni's Nursery, Keystone Powerfuel, Soda Mineral and Warren Observer.

Sam Scalise took low scoring honors for the 12th week of play firing a 37. Deb Sedon and Bob Wadsworth both fired 38s while Ernie Sedon, Joe Brindis, Boots Smith and Skip Morine fired 39s.

the nightcap, tagging Broglio, 3-9, for five runs and six hits in the first two innings. Mays' homer, with two on in the second, gave him a league-leading 58 runs batted in and proved more than enough support for Ron Herbel, 7-4.

Mota started the scoring for the Pirates with a two-run homer off Jim Maloney in the first and Stargell put it out of reach with a three-run shot in the sixth. Bob Veale, 8-6, and Al McBean held the Reds to four hits.

Veteran Buhl Heading for Greatest Year Since Trade

By JERRY LISKA

Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Bob Buhl, the Chicago Cubs' 35-year-old right-hander, could be headed towards his best pitching year since his hey-day with the Milwaukee Braves.

Buhl recorded his 10th victory of the season and his third shutout with a slick four-hitter and a 2-0 decision over the San Francisco Giants in the opener of a doubleheader Wednesday.

Buhl scoffs the suggestion he might become a 20-game winner, topping his best seasons with the Braves — 18-8 in 1956 and 18-7 in 1957.

"The goal I have is to have just a winning season and help this club go further than anybody expected," said Buhl, now in his 12th major league season and his third with the Cubs, who acquired him from the Braves in a 1962 swap for pitcher Jack Curtis.

Buhl, whose 16 starts this season have been marred by only four defeats, has not had a winning season since a 16-9 effort for the Braves in 1960.

Buhl naturally doesn't suggest

(Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.)

FOR FRIDAY, JULY 10

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) — Ask if in doubt, but do not become unsettled at every sign of complexity. In general, hold the line against wavering and lack of confidence. Exploit your talent.

APRIL 21 to MAY 21 (Taurus) — Fine Venus influences encourage the best use of your talents now. Don't abandon new projects without giving them fair trial. There is more room at the top than you may believe.

MAY 22 to JUNE 21 (Gemini) — You may have an unusual opportunity to advance your interests immediately — one which could have an important bearing on your future as well. Be ready to accept.

JUNE 22 to JULY 23 (Cancer) — This is no time for dwelling on old errors, except to recognize that they must not be repeated. On with your present program — especially if it's been built on a solid foundation and the result of progressive ideas.

JULY 24 to AUGUST 23 (Leo) — Do not lower your dignity by using strong-arm or other forceful measures to achieve success. You will accomplish more through calmness, serenity.

AUGUST 24 to SEPTEMBER 23 (Virgo) — A new goal in mind? Stop to ascertain first what is really required, then note how and where to achieve it. A consultation with knowledgeable heads could help.

SEPTEMBER 24 to OCTOBER 23 (Libra) — Why not step out in more venturesome manner if you have the facts and your intuition tells you that the time is ripe? If not reckless, you might walk right into a wonderful new opportunity.

OCTOBER 24 to NOVEMBER 23 (Scorpio) — A chance now to see things in quiet perspective. Stand back to look things over — but only those concerned with the present; forget the past.

NOVEMBER 24 to DECEMBER 21 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter highly auspicious! Day spells action, determination, aggressiveness. Rouse yourself to that added effort which brings such sweet compensation.

DECEMBER 22 to JANUARY 20 (Capricorn) — Crush any inclination to postpone things. As with Sagittarius, NOW is the time for action. Strike while the time is propitious and the opposition is off balance. In your eagerness, however, don't swerve off on a tangent — it could cause delay.

JANUARY 21 to FEBRUARY 19 (Aquarius) — Direct your very effective energies down a worthwhile road now. You can be adroit, resourceful, a winner in any competition, when you will. Will it NOW!

FEBRUARY 20 to MARCH 20 (Pisces) — The emphasis now is on choosing the correct project on which to shower your handiwork. But be practical. No wishful thinking.

YOU BORN TODAY make patient teachers, loving companions. You have talents galore for success. Choose a goal and drive a straight line toward it, then use your other gifts in an avocation. Street Dance Set Saturday In Tidioute TIDIOUTE — The Tidioute Area Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring its second street dance on Saturday from 9 p.m. to midnight on Main Street between Green and Depot Sts. Donations have been made by local merchants to help defray the expense of the musicians, since the first dance was so successful. At one time there were 16 sets of square dancers on the street.

John Taydus and his combo from Garland will again furnish music for both round and square dancing. They will play from a trailer platform furnished by Joseph Heenan of Tidioute.

Garwood Lodge, Chamber president, reported that donations received at the fireworks display on July 4, sponsored by the Area Chamber of Commerce, amounted to $210.97. The fireworks cost $325.00.

Tidioute Volunteer Fire Company did an excellent job of handling the parking on the Bucktail field, which was filled to capacity, he said. Main St., in the vicinity of the ball diamond, was lined with about 40 cars watching the display.

STEAM CLEANING — Maintenance men are in the midst of reconditioning the exterior of the Bell Telephone Building, located on the corner of East St. and Pa. Ave. The operation involves the steam cleaning and water-proofing of the bricks, followed by "pointing" the mortar between them. The local firm has contracted Standard Services of Pittsburgh to handle the job, with W. L. Berkhous as the local supervisor.

Tidioute Young People Visit Meeting of Council

TIDIOUTE — Three of Tidioute's young people, Candy Atkins, Gene Rosequist, and Francis Zavinski made history for the Borough Council when they appeared at its meeting here last night. "Just to see what it was like," as the spokesman said. It was the first such visit on record.

MRS. CARL Niemann and Mrs. Melvin Spelcher, representatives of Tidioute Fortnightly Club, appeared to report on the condition of the street signs which they donated to the borough two years ago. Mrs. Niemann presented four signs to replace those which have been removed from their standards. Two were for Scott St. one for Church St., and one for High St. The club did not replace Grant St. and McCauley Hill signs which have been removed. Also the Club does not feel that it can continue to replace signs in the future and therefore turned over to Council all the material compiled on Tidioute street signs.

Council approved of the street repair work done by the maintenance committee but made plans to have the blacktop patching sealed before cold weather. Councilman Edwin Lewis is to make the necessary contacts.

LEWIS ALSO quoted prices from two sources for used eight-inch pipe for replacement of a sewer into the Allegheny River. Henry Fuelhart and Walter McKown volunteered to go to Van, Pa., today, to inspect pipe for sale by United Natural Gas Co., with the intention of ordering 200 or more feet of pipe if it is in good condition.

Complaints reported to council.

A motion was made to transfer $300 from the General Fund to the Lighting Fund in order to meet current bills. Parking receipts for June totaled $329.60, parking fines $30.25 and illegal parking $2.00. Balance in the General Fund as of June 30 was $5864.03; Lighting Fund $304.40; and Library Fund $80.88. Current bills amounted to $1708.57. Next meeting was set for Thursday, August 12 at 7 p.m. in the Council Chambers.

Clergyman's Daughter Killed In Odd Mishap

BEDFORD, Pa. (AP)—The daughter of a Pittsburgh clergyman was killed Wednesday night in an unusual accident on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Diana Ward, 8, daughter of Rev. Richard Ward, was pronounced dead at the scene, about six miles west of Bedford.

State police said he was the operator of a car which spun out of control on a rain-slicked portion of the east-bound lane. The car struck a medial barrier, police said, and the impact hurled the girl out of the car into the side of a bus traveling in the west-bound lane.

Then another west-bound vehicle ran over the girl, police said. This vehicle apparently left the scene without stopping, police reported.

The Rev. Mr. Ward, 31, and three other daughters and a niece who also were riding in his car were not injured, police said.

Political Overtones of Baker's Case To Haunt November Campaign

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has closed its Bobby Baker investigation but its political overtones are expected to echo in this fall's election campaign as Republicans have charged "the full story has not been disclosed."

The Senate Rules Committee rang down the curtain on the seven-month probe into the wheelings and dealings of the former Senate aide with a report Wednesday saying he was "guilty of many gross improprieties."

But it left it up to the Justice whether Baker should be prosecuted for any violations of criminal law.

The report was submitted to the Senate on behalf of the committee's Democratic majority by Chairman B. Everett Jordan, D-N.C.

A separate minority report turned in by the committee's three Republican members accused the Democratic majority of ignoring their "rights" to have additional witnesses called including White House aide Walter Jenkins, and charged a "cover-up."

Jenkins figured in testimony

Bus Is Now Available From Erie

ERIE — Erie and area residents with friends or relatives at Warren State Hospital now have economical transportation to and from the institution under an arrangement coordinated by the Mental Health Association of Erie County.

In co-operation with Lake Lines Inc., the association sponsors charter bus service for $2.50 for the round trip. The bus leaves the YMCA at Tenth and Peach Sts. each Sunday at 11 a.m., Union City at 11:40; Corry at 12:10. It leaves Warren at 4 p.m. and arrives back in Erie at 6 p.m.

Dr. Robert Israel, superintendent at the hospital, voiced praise for the service, pointing out that regular visits from family members, friends and relatives is an important part of the hospital's therapy program.

"This transportation for those who do not have regular means of visiting the hospital, provides a way for patients to maintain contacts with loved ones, and this is vital in helping the patient to readjust to the community when he is released," Dr. Israel said.

The charter bus service was established by the association in answer to more than 150 requests from relatives for low cost transportation between Erie and Warren State Hospital.

Representatives of the association have been gratified by the response to the service from relatives, and also the patients, who have commented on the value of seeing family members regularly.

by Don B. Reynolds, a local insurance agent with whom Baker was associated and who sold two $100,000 life insurance policies to President Johnson before he became president.

The GOP members, however, said they had no major criticism of the analysis of the evidence in the majority report. "It does reveal gross wrongdoing, gross improprieties, and conduct which we believe to be unlawful," they said.

They said their criticism "is centered upon the fact that the majority refused to call all the witnesses and refused to get all the facts."

"The full story has not been disclosed concerning Bobby Baker and those associated with him, including present and former senators and Senate employees," the Republicans charged.

Baker, now 36, was elected majority secretary in 1955, the youngest man ever to hold the post. He became the right-hand man of Lyndon B. Johnson who was elected Senate Democratic majority leader at the same time.

Because of Baker's and Johnson's association, the committee's investigation had undercurrents which Republicans are expected to try to whip up in the campaign.

Baker, who resigned under fire last Oct. 7 from his $19,600-a-year Senate post, could not be reached for comment on the committee report.

When Baker was called by the committee as a witness, he invoked his Fifth Amendment protection against possible self-incrimination and refused to answer questions or to surrender subpoenaed records.

The majority report said Baker "grossly exaggerated" his wealth. "The magnitude of his exaggeration is as astounding as the magnitude of the net worth he claimed," it said.

Joining in the minority report were Sens. Carl T. Curtis, R-

Neb., Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky. Curtis is floor manager for Goldwater at the Republican National Convention next week. Scott has a similar assignment for Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania, Goldwater's chief rival for the GOP presidential nomination.

ONE GOLD FANG

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When Hans, a sentry dog at Lockbourne Air Force Base, broke a fang on a fence, veterinarian Don Waldrup and dental officers Ralph Garcia and James Bigalke tackled repairs.

Now, although he may not be the handsomest sentry dog on base, Hans is the most dazzling. The fang he damaged is gold-capped.

Goldwater Pushes for First Ballot Win

By JACK BEL

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Gov. William W. Scranton went on thumping the drums hopefully today but Sen. Barry Goldwater's supporters plowed confidently toward their goal of a first ballot presidential nomination for the Arizona senator.

In the face of Scranton's declaration that an "overwhelming number of Republicans seem to think that I ought to be nominated and I think I ought to be, too," the Goldwater forces brought up a vigorous dissent. Sen. Carl T. Curtis of Nebraska, the Arizona senator's convention floor manager, said that "we have got more than enough" delegate votes for the nomination "but we want more."

"We want to make the most impressive showing possible on the first ballot when Sen. Goldwater will win the nomination," he said.

Although Curtis declined to deal in numbers, Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., another Goldwater strategist, said in a separate interview "we've got more than 700 and we're getting more." A total of 655 convention votes is needed for the nomination.

Scranton, the Pennsylvania governor, was a late starter in the contest for the GOP presidential nomination. In his efforts to win away some of Goldwater's supporters by personal campaigning, Scranton flew into San Francisco Wednesday saying he can wrest the nomination from Goldwater and can win in November.

At a sweltering, jam-packed gathering in the swank Mark Hopkins Hotel, the Pennsylvania said he is "ready to win the nomination and I am ready to win in November."

Scranton has been emphasizing an interview Goldwater gave a German news weekly in which he said he doesn't believe, "as of now," that any GOP candidate can defeat President Johnson, but that it might be an entirely different story in November.

The hard truth of Goldwater's statement is acknowledged by almost every Republican willing to comment on it privately. But they add that this is not something a leading candidate for the party nomination should be saying publicly.

But Curtis said he found in a careful check that this incident has caused no perceptible falling off in Goldwater's delegate support. He said the Arizona senator was only making a frank, truthful analysis of the situation as it stands today.

Scranton's arrival reception, preceding that of Goldwater by a day, was noisy but not of giant proportions.

The opponents of the Goldwater conservative stance had produced most of their top-rank figures — including Govs. George Romney of Michigan and Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and former ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge — without seeming to have made a perceptible dent in the delegate strength gained by the Arizona senator.

The lone personality who is credited with any ability to change the result—former President Dwight D. Eisenhower—is not due until the weekend. But his role of neutrality in the presidential contest appeared to have been established beyond alteration.

Scranton carried his case to the convention platform committee. He said he would appeal for a strong civil rights plank and for a declaration against any type of "extremism."

His forum was a 105-member group that contains a majority of Goldwater supporters. And there was no indication that the committee will produce any statement that Goldwater could not accept or any that would open the way for any successful challenge on the convention floor.

Tower said he doesn't believe there will be any floor fight because he is confident Goldwater will accept any "reasonable" platform that the committee drafts under the guidance of Rep. Melvin R. Laird, R-Wis., its chairman.

In the minds of most delegates about the only thing left to be settled by next week's convention is the choice of a vice presidential nominee.

Rep. William E. Miller of New York, chairman of the GOP National Committee, obviously had an okay from the Goldwater forces to try to sew up this job and he was working hard at it.

One veteran member of the national committee who is backing Goldwater said he and other strategists canvassed the field in recent meetings and had come to the conclusion that as a Roman Catholic, an Easterner and a resident of upstate New York, Miller is the most available candidate.

One highly placed convention official said that when Goldwater asks his advice about the matter—as the Arizona senator can be expected to do—he will urge that second place on the ticket be offered first to Scranton.

Scranton has said he won't take it. But politicians have been known to change their minds under the stress of convention events. This official, who asked that he not be quoted by name, summed up the situation this way:

"There is the chance that Scranton might take it. His term as governor continues for two more years and he has no place to go politically then because he can't succeed himself. If he took the vice presidential nomination, he wouldn't be hurt politically even if Goldwater were defeated. In defeat the top of the ticket gets all of the blame. As the vice presidential nominee, Scranton would be in a strong position to bid for the presidential nomination in 1968."
